SCIENCE VS. KNIFE
A Splendid Surgical Operation—Successful Result and Wonderful Recovery.
SURGICAL OPERATION.—The operation of lithotomy (removal of stone from the bladder), one of the most severe and critical operations known to the science of surgery, was successfully performed on Tuesday, upon Mr. Henry H. Pitts, a merchant of this city, by Dr. David Kennedy. Several friends of the patient witnessed the operation. Mr. Pitts has suffered several years from this difficulty, but it was only a week before the operation that he was made aware of the real cause of his complaint.
RECOVERY.—Mr. Henry H. Pitts has recovered from the effects incident to the operation, the closing of the wound being completed on the 16th day. His general health is good—better than it has been for years, while he is perfectly free from all those distressing symptoms so characteristic of the disease with which he suffered. Had this man, as many cases of the kind, Dr. Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" in the early stages of the complaint, the formation of stone would have been prevented. This wonderful remedy also purifies the blood, cures Constipation of the Bowels, and all those diseases and weaknesses peculiar to Females. This wonderful medicine is now for sale by all our druggists, $1 a bottle. dawlm nov8

STATE NEWS.

Androscoggin.

The Lewiston Journal says that when the Monday morning train came up from Brunswick, and approached the station at the lower Maine Central yard, it was found that the air brakes were out of order and would not work. The engineer whistled for the other brakes, and in putting them hard down a chain broke. There was nothing to stop the impetus of the train, and the engine ran against a snow plow, which stood at the track limit. The plow was knocked against the big bunting pole with force enough to break it off like a pipe stem. The snow plow went off the track and made room for itself through the fence. The forward wheels of the engine went off. The snow plow suffered slight damage and little harm was done by the accident. None of the train people were injured.——Three more fellows have been implicated in the Music Hall burglary. Monday evening officers Metcalf, Stone, McGillicuddy and Walsh arrested Daniel Murphy, Jr., Nick Feeney and Patrick Dunn, on the charge of receiving a part of the stolen goods. They were arraigned in the Lewiston Municipal Court, Tuesday morning, and each was ordered to recognize to the S. J. Court in the sum of $500. Murphy secured bail Tuesday afternoon, and the other two were sent to jail. Both the latter are minors. Murphy has been up for rum smuggling previously. It is charged that he hid the booty found in Ham's woods. Feeney secreted some in a shed and Dunn helped James Mellen into a Lincoln street cellar with his slice. Eight fellows have been connected with this burglary.——The production of the Barker Mill for the last six months has been 1,000,000 yards.——The largest in the history of the mill. The Barker Mill did not suffer at all from the drouth, but made full time during the dry season.——The Grangers of Lewiston Grange No. 2, of So. Lewiston, together with invited friends, held their first fair at Grange Hall, So. Lewiston, on the evening of Nov. 4th, 1880. The hall was well filled with people, and the display of fruit, vegetables, rugs, carpets, quilts, fancy articles, etc., was very fine.

Cumberland.

PORTLAND. The Garfield and Arthur Glee Club will give a dinner at the Preble House this Friday evening.——There are two well organized rowing clubs in this city.——The Boys in Blue have now reorganized under the same name as a social, literary and political club. One evening in each week will be devoted to the discussion of political questions.——Barnum's agent was in town yesterday and engaged a place for the circus to exhibit next June, in that part of Deering Oaks bordering on Grove street.——An alarm pulled from box 19, about 3 P. M., Tuesday, followed quickly by two others from the same box, caused a general stampede towards the corner of Lincoln and Pearl streets. The disgust expressed on many countenances was very apparent when, after reaching the spot where it was supposed a serious conflagration was raging, it became known that it was an alarm merely to call the department out for inspection. The entire department responded promptly and were on the spot very quickly. Hook and Ladder No. 1 reached the box in just three minutes, and was followed by Steamers 5, 2, 1, Hook and Ladder No. 1, Steamers 4 and 3. This is the official order. The hose carriages were all on hand in a few minutes. Such delay as did ensue to some of the latter companies was owing to the horses being engaged on the streets. This delay, with the present arrangement, by which the same horses do duty for both the street and fire departments, seems inevitable, unless it is possible to employ the horses within a short distance of the engine houses. It is highly creditable to the department that out of 110 officers and men, all but two officers and thirteen men were on hand at the fires. The rolls were called and established this fact. The chief and his assistants were present promptly. Hooks No. 2 should be specially noticed for the fine appearance of the men, who were all dressed and equipped in good style. It is evident that the department is in most efficient order, and pleased the Committee on Fire Department, who made a strict observation of all features of the inspection.—Press.

The Advocate says that Messrs. Hutchins & Nye, of East New Portland, have bought a township of timber land on the Dead River and are intending to do considerable lumbering this winter. Several teams have already gone into the woods.

Franklin.

Lizzie Norton, a native of Farmington, and granddaughter of Campmeeting John Allen, is meeting with great success in opera at St. Petersburg.

The editor of the Phillips Phonograph announces that a complete history of the Sandy River Railroad will appear from week to week in that paper, and that subscriptions for three months, to cover the proposed series of articles, will be taken for 25 cents. It is a matter of interest in those sections of the State where narrow gauge railroads are proposed.

Hunters report for animals plenty.

Capt. Jotham Bradbury, of Farmington, celebrated his 90th birthday on the 17th.

Hancock.

The Baptist church edifice, in Ellsworth, has received a new coat of paint, and now presents a fine appearance.

Lumbermen in Ellsworth have begun sending crews into the woods for the winter work. Some of them expect to cut more than they have for several years.

A letter written for the Boston Advertiser, in July, 1879, by Rev. B. F. DeCosta, whose opportunities for research entitle him to speak with authority on the question as to whether Mount Desert should have the accent on the first or last syllable, say:—In reality the word "Desert" has no connect on with the French word signifying merit, nor with what is taken at the end of a dinner. Again and again Champlain says, in both editions of his work, that he named it "The Island of the Desert Mountains." In one place he says, the "Isle of the Desert Mountains, supposing the Sonus' Sound divided the island into two parts." The French stands, "Isle de les Monts Deserts." There is no reference here to "De Monts" Champlain's chief, as one of the Prince Society's publications teaches; and if we use the French in connection with the island, it will be necessary to say Mont Desert, while a sound sense, when in Noyes' English, will lead to the proper and natural Mount Desert, putting the accent on the first syllable, as the case requires.

The Douglass Copper Co., Bluehill, have arranged for the erection of smelting works, to cost from $30,000 to $50,000.

Capt. Hicks, of the brig L. M. Merritt, was drowned at Matanzas, Nov. 20.

Kennebec.

Mr. Walden Cutts, of Litchfield, has erected a large and beautiful dwelling house with modern improvements, which will soon be ready for occupancy on what is known as the Elder Grant farm.

The Hallowell Granite Co. have a $5,000 contract for a soldiers' monument for Beverly, Mass. It is to be 38 feet high, and surmounted by an 8-foot statue of a soldier.

Somerset.

The sleighing in Somerset County never was better.

Rumor says that the Somerset Railroad will be pushed to Solon early in the spring.

Skowhegan has paid her State tax amounting to $8,000.

Deputy Collector Smith has resigned his place at Moose river. W. H. Hanson is a candidate for the position.

The paper mill at Skowhegan, under the new management, is well supplied with orders. They are turning out a splendid quality of paper, and have orders ahead for several months. They now run night and day.

About nine o'clock Thursday, week, the barn of Col. John Hale, of Madison Bridge, was burned. When the fire was discovered the flames were bursting from the roof. The building was consumed with its contents, two nice colts, two cows, one calf, mowing machine, farm wagon and forty tons of hay and fodder. The origin of the fire is a mystery, as we understand that none of the family were in the building after dark.—Somerset Reporter.

A Skowhegan lady who happened to be at West Waterville just before the November election, was annoyed once derisively by a Democrat because she had got to live under Hancock's administration for four years. Although not a betting character she did wager the best scythe that could be made in the country, that Garfield would be the next President. Accordingly last week she received an elegantly finished scythe, which she says cut off Hancock's head.

York.

All the workmen in the department of construction and repair in the Kittery Navy Yard, excepting the caulkers, borers and painters, were suspended Nov. 7 for the remainder of the month, the funds being expended. On and after Dec. 1, the suspended workmen go on half time.

CAPE COD CANAL.

The New Company Organized.

The Cape Cod Canal Company organized at Boston, Tuesday, by the choice of Henry M. Whitney as President, and G. T. W. Braman, as Treasurer, and engineers will soon make a practical survey of the line. This company comes into existence as the successor of the Cape Cod Ship Canal Company, in accordance with a special act of the Legislature of 1880. The company last named had held a charter for many years, renewed at intervals by the Legislature, under which it had the right to construct the canal. Nothing was ever done, however, except to make surveys and estimates, and last winter the Legislature was asked to transfer the right to a new company. As a result an act was passed chartering the new company, to take effect provided that previous to the first of November the old company had not paid in $400,000 of its capital and actually expended $100,000 in the work. This the old company failed to do, and now the new corporation comes into being. The corporators named in the act are Henry M. Whitney, Hosmer Hosford, George M. Barnard, Alfred A. Nickerson, G. T. W. Braman, Henry F. Dimock, William C. Whitney and Charles T. Barney. The new company, before it can begin to work, must reimburse the old company for expenditures actually made, and assume the responsibility for execution land damages, and must have bona fide subscriptions to the stock, amounting to $500,000, of which $200,000 shall have been actually paid in. The capital stock is limited to $4,000,000 in shares of $100 each, and any railroad company has the right, by a majority vote of its stockholders, to subscribe to stock or to guarantee bonds of the Canal Company to an amount not exceeding 5 per cent. of its own capital stock.

Men's Fashions.

The most elegant handkerchiefs have wide hems, the borders and are made of the finest lawn, but there are colored and white silk handkerchiefs for those who like them, and the broceaded and polka dotted silks are still used. Pugs' heads are embroidered in the corners of handkerchiefs, and sometimes the pug is smoking a pipe in the most knowing manner imaginable.

In hosiery there are no changes since last season, but the demand for rich goods increases, and the elegant stockings that cost $6.75 a pair are sold in far greater numbers than they were last year. Dark solid colors, with or without clocks, are worn, and the polka dot has disappeared. It is to be hoped forever. The price of the stockings with clocks is ten cents more than that of those without the adornment, a fact which indicates that some woman work for a ridiculously small price. The English hosiery is still preferred to the American, being firmer and less liable to shrink.

The gloves worn are usually dark, the London tan being the brightest shade, and those in which the stitching matches the glove are preferred to those with black embroidery. Swedish gloves cost 25 cents a pair less than those of undressed kid and come in more delicate tints. The ulster glove, with kid hand and worsted back, the white Longwood glove, is not to be discarded, and the dog skin mitten, with spring wrist and Astrakhan lining, is still a favorite with men, who think them warmer than gloves.

Dressing gowns are growing far too gorgeous, for the stern severity of style which men claim as their own when writing about women's fashions. The choice India brocades which most women regard with reverence, craving only a small bit of them for collars and cuffs, are made into gowns in which men lounge away their breakfast time as coolly as if they were wearing tweed; and this year the luxurious creatures have their smoking jackets embroidered in colors; and the quilted linings of both jackets and dressing gowns are very elaborate.

WEATHER PROPHETS. "He that observeth the wind shall not sow, and he that regardeth the clouds shall not reap," is the Scriptural warning against the weather-wiseacres; but, alas! like too many other Scriptural warnings and injunctions, it is too often disregarded or forgotten. The weather prophets have of late been contradictory in their valuations. Ventnor, of Canada, foretelling an early and severe Winter, with a "very" universal superabundance of snow; while Devoe, of New Jersey, predicts a mild Winter, with more slush than snow, and rain than frost. The New York Herald's private prophet agrees, in the main, with the Canadian as to the earliness and severity of the Winter; but while the latter is content to draw his conclusions from the meteorology of North America, the Herald man, disdaining all domestic sources of recondite information, goes to mysterious Asia for the cause of the phenomenon. There he finds that throughout the east and arid wastes of the central and northern parts of that mighty continent the atmosphere this year is exceptionally dry and that the earth is therefore losing a great deal of its heat to a cloudless sky. Hence the formation there of intensely cold waves that will move eastward across Behring Straits and over the Rocky Mountains, whose snowy summits will add to the frigidity of the icy currents on their cheerless way across the continent to the Atlantic. Phew!

NEWS AND OTHER ITEMS.

Scene in an oyster house—"See here, these oysters are spoiled." "That's all right; I put in twice as many on that account."

The sudden closing of the canals leading to New York City has shut up, it is estimated, no less than seven million bushels of grain, and straightway the "bulls" in the produce market have become jubilant at the prospect of higher prices for breadstuffs.

"Thrashing by steam," murmured a fond mother as she glanced at an article in an agricultural paper. "What gli-ups they do have now-a-days. If I had one of those steam thrashers for my four boys, my arms wouldn't have been as rheumaticky as they are to-day," and she dreamily thought of the past as it might have been.

Convicted dealers in watered milk have paid fines to the amount of five thousand dollars in New York city during the past year. Inasmuch as not one dishonest dealer in ten is detected, and inasmuch as each fellow who has been "found out" in one such offence has been guilty of a great many undetected adulterations, what a quantity of watered milk must the Gothamites have swallowed during the twelve-month!

An old Vermont farmer came home drunk the other night, and became the victim of an irrepressible desire to get still drunker. So he thought he would bring out his wagon and drive over to Shelburne Falls for more whiskey. Just as he was about putting the finishing touches on the harnessing arrangements he said to himself, "This horse has got horns." He brought out his lantern and found he had harnessed the cow to the wagon. He muttered, "I'm drunk enough now," unhitched the beast and went into the house to sleep it off.

RURAL PAPERS AND EXPERIMENT FARMS. Every agricultural paper needs an experimental farm before its ambition can be satisfied. Every agricultural or horticultural paper, says the Rural New Yorker, needs such a farm if it cares to make its teachings original and trustworthy. It is also necessary—the farm procured—that the editor should spend not less than one-third of his time, during the growing season at any rate, in the field. And he must work with his own hands, as well as see to it that his instructions are carried out by others. It seems to us that the time has passed when an editor can sit in his office, week in and week out, year after year, and yet instruct farmers What to do and How to do it, who are themselves practicing farm work from morning till night. No matter how thorough his farm education may have been, farm methods are constantly changing. New seeds are brought to notice every season. Cross-breeds and hybrids of fruits, grains and flowers are to be carefully tested. Improved or new agricultural implements are every year to be examined and their comparative excellence ascertained. An editor cannot shut himself up in his office and yet know about such matters.

THE COST OF EXPERIMENTS. The Rural New Yorker says it is a matter of surprise that there are many in Michigan (as in other States) who insist that the Agricultural College should conduct a great number of experiments in the interests of agriculture and horticulture and yet return to the State, "dollar for dollar," all it receives from the State. The object of an experiment is to find out something of value. If such experiments could be conducted and yet return to the experimenters all they cost in time and money, we should not need public institutions for such purposes; private enterprise would prove ample. We know from our own experience upon the Rural Farm and Grounds that valuable facts or results cannot be obtained without a great amount of painstaking, tedious labor. And the worst of it is that they are rarely obtained even then. In experiments the chances are largely against success, and the adverse ratio becomes greater according to the value of the information sought. Had Dr. Lawes, of Rothamsted, been obliged to make his experiments "self-supporting," they would have been ended in their infancy, instead of being conducted perseveringly, patiently, through forty years.

AT SEA OR A COTTON-BALE.

THE STRANGE STORY OF THE STEAMER LEXINGTON.

BY BISHOP CLARK, OF RHODE ISLAND.

I well remember the dismay with which the tidings of the burning of the steamer Lexington in Long Island Sound was received in Boston forty years ago. The first report was that all on board were lost, and, in fact, it proved that there were only four survivors left to tell the tale of woe that made that fatal January night so tragically memorable. It happened, a few evenings ago, in passing through the Sound in the steamer Rhode Island, that it fell into conversation with Mr. David Crowley, at present one of the officers of the boat, and he told me that he was one of the four persons who managed to escape with their lives when the Lexington was burned. I asked him to give me the exact particulars, which he did in a very modest and unassuming way, and I think that the story is worth preserving; for I venture to say that very few men could have endured what he did and lived through it. He is now a strong, well-preserved, and young-looking man (with his hat on), of a little more than sixty years of age, and has experienced no permanent detriment from the awful exposure to which he was subjected in his youth.

On the night in question the Lexington was crowded with cotton to the full extent of its capacity, and also carrying the full quota of passengers. At about 7:30 o'clock Mr. C. says that he heard a crashing of feet on the deck, and hurrying from his room, he saw that the whole central part of the vessel was afire, cutting off all communication with the apparatus for extinguishing the flames. There was nothing to be done to save the steamer, and the life-boats, as is so often the case under similar circumstances, proved to be of no practical service. After assisting in throwing overboard a number of cotton bales, he seized a board and jumped into the water. This he found to be of little use, and seeing at some little distance a bale of cotton that did not appear to be on fire,—everything around being made as light as day by the burning ship,—he swam for the bale and succeeded in reaching it. Waiting a while, in order to recover from his exhaustion, he managed to climb upon the top of the bale, where, if he could only avoid being frozen to death, he felt that he was for the time being secure. Gradually the fires of the Lexington abated, and at last he found himself alone on the waste of waters, with nothing to do but to wait, with what patience he could, in the cold and darkness, until the dawn of day should bring relief. When the morning broke a sloop appeared in sight, engaged in looking after those who might have survived the wreck, and he was now sure that the worst was over and rescue near at hand until, to his dismay, he saw the vessel change her course and sail away without having detected him. All that day, the stout-hearted man clung to his cotton bale, thinking about as far as he could venture to go that he might keep the circulation in his body alive, and sometimes trying to paddle his clumsy craft with his bare hands, but without the slightest effect. Occasionally he fell into a doze, and tumbled twice into the water, regaining his place upon the bale with not a little difficulty. As night drew on he wound up his watch as usual, and thinking that he had now been some sufficiently accustomed to the motion of his craft to enable him to do it in safety, and being very tired and sleepy, he adjusted himself for a good night's rest. As he assured me, he did sleep quietly through the whole night, and woke in the morning refreshed in body and mind. The Wednesday sun now dawned, and another dreary day on the cotton bale awaited him. Two or three times it flashed across him that "good enough meat" would be refreshing, but he says that he suffered little from either hunger or thirst. He had neither a coat on his back, or a covering for his head, and how he was able to avoid being frozen to death I do not know. He never lost heart for an instant, or had the slightest doubt of being rescued at last. Sometimes he floated near the land, and then the winds and currents bore him away to a point from which he had could not venture to come at all. He again tried to wind up his watch, but, with frozen fingers, could not handle the key. After a while he fell into a sort of daze, and imagined himself to be in his bed at home, and he decided to slip from the bale and wade ashore. The plunge into the icy waters restored him to his senses, and again he tried in some mysterious way to recover his seat on the cotton bale. On the third evening, at about 9 o'clock, he found himself fast nearing the shore, and recognized a spot known as "The horse in the bank," from the resemblance to a horse of a clump of bushes growing near the water. His heart now revived, and he felt that all that remained was for him to get through the surf in safety, which, in his enfeebled condition, he knew would require a stronger effort of the will. This he accomplished, and at last found himself once more standing on the solid ground. As his frozen feet were entirely insensible, it was with the greatest difficulty that he was enabled to walk at all, but, after one or two falls, he struck into a neighboring valley, thinking that he might find some spot where he could be sheltered from the searching wind and wait for the dawn of morning.

After pitching along, as he supposes about half a mile, he, to his indescribable joy, a light appeared, and making his way to the door of the house from which it shone, he knocked for admittance. A young man came to the door, who at first strongly suspected of evil intent, was looking being upon stood upon the step; but it was not long before the hospitable family were busy doing everything in their power for his relief and comfort. A bright fire was blazing on the hearth, but he was inexpressible of feeling the heat, and it at once occurred to his friends that it would be perilous for him to be exposed to such a sudden change of temperature. Cutting off all constrictions in the swollen condition of his feet made imperative. His frozen hands and feet were immersed in cold water, which soon became coated with a film of ice, and were scrapped off from time to time, until the frost was thoroughly abstracted. Sustainable nourishment was then administered, but the sense of taste was entirely obliterated, and all that he craved was repose. A long night's rest restored his equilibrium, and before noon on Thursday a hundred people had flocked in from the country to see him, the tidings of his wonderful rescue having by this time been communicated far and near. Mr. Crowley's interest in his friend's cotton bale had now revived, and a band of men started off to find it. They returned unsuccessful, when Mr. C., after inquiring how the wind and tide had been flowing since he landed, informed them of the spot where the bale would have been likely to lodge. Following his directions, the bale was found, covered with ice, and in no way distinguishable from the surrounding rocks, except by its undulation in the water. The bale was then brought in triumph to the house, and left there, subject to the order of the owner, who had become its proprietor by the right of actual possession. For three months and a half he remained with his hospitable friends, receiving from them the kindest attention, when he was removed to his mother's house, Providence, whither the cotton-bale soon followed him. There it lay in the yard for more than twenty years when cotton having reached its maximum price during the last year the family were approached by a stranger who had induced to sell his precious bale to the manufacturer. The goods that were made from it received the "Lexington and Crowley" stamp, and one good-sized package was presented to him by the manufacturer, a portion of which he bestowed upon his relatives and friends. It is a melancholy fact that the goods which Mr. Crowley retained for his own use were soon stolen by some very unsentimental and cold-blooded burglar. And thus ends the strange story of the iron-nerved man who lived for more than two days and two nights on a bale of cotton in the sea.

From the windows of my house at Bonesteel I see the wreck of the steamer Rhode Island, on board of which, a few nights since, I heard the extraordinary story above narrated and I recall the earnest tone in which the speaker said, at the close of his narrative, "The only thing that I really fear on the Sound, which I have navigated for the last fifty years, is fog." His apprehension was justified in ten days time, when, in the thick, impenetrable darkness the Rhode Island dashed its life out on the rocks at the opening of Narragansett Bay.—New York Ledger.

UPSETTING A WAGON.

Mr. Wagon was the victim. His son Johnny is a mischievous lad, and the other day resolved to play a trick on his brother. He arranged certain attachments to that brother's bed, worked by cords running to his own room, and then went off fishing. While he was gone, his brother was sent away to be absent over night, and a lot of company arriving at the house, Mr. Wagon gave up his own room to them and occupied the absent son's bed. Johnny got home late at night, and wholly ignorant of his change of arrangements went to his room, which was next to his mother's, and prepared to perpetrate his designs upon his brother. The first proceeding was to hold a cord which ran between the blankets and spread on his brother's bed, and being fastened to the top would pull the clothes off the bed. Mr. Wagon was comfortably tucked in, when suddenly the clothes began to slip and he found himself uncovered. He thought he might have kicked them off and sat up and took hold of the clothes to pull them back. Meantime Johnny had another cord which pulled the pillow off the bed. Mr. Wagon discovered his loss and reached for his pillow and when he got it the clothes went off again. He was much excited at that and again went after the clothes and again lost the pillow. That time the pillow went under the bed and Mr. Wagon went after it, and immediately came out again and swore prodigiously, for the floor was strewn with chestnut burs, and he had gotten into them. He resolved to scold the chamber-maid for leaving so many pins on the floor. Once more he made an attempt to get the pillow, and as it was way under, he made a transcendent effort to it, and just then Johnny, who was this time with laughter, pulled the last cord and the whole bed came down upon Mr. Wagon and jammed him upon the burs. His frantic howls brought his wife and friends to the rescue, and he was fished out. And then the gas was lighted and somebody discovered the cords running to Johnny's room. Mr. Wagon at once mastered it here. The lad explained that he thought his brother was in the bed, but he didn't make any differences. His shells were mistaken by a man sleeping half a mile away, for a cry of fire, and he jumped out of bed so hard he sprained a toe. And the next day when Johnny went to school, he got spanked again, because he wouldn't sit down, and is now resolved to run away from home the first chance he can get, as this part of the country is a mighty discouraging region for a boy.

SATISFYING AN INVESTOR. A New York agent of a western silver mine which has made no dividends for the last year, or any other year, received a call the other day from a Long Island farmer who had invested several hundred dollars in stock, and who was anxious for returns. He was a blunt, plain-spoken man, and he came to the point at once by saying:

"Don't my neighbors tell me that they believe this mine was salted."

"Were any of your neighbors ever out in Colorado?" queried the agent.

"I guess not."

"Were you ever out there?"

"No, sir."

"Do you know anything of the climate?"

"No."

"Then, I will let me tell you that our mine is salted. That's the reason we get no dividends. We had to send to Chicago for all our salt, and the cost of transportation has been enormous. I forget how many barrels it took, but the executive officers of our company tell me it took a mine like ours quite for want of a few thousand barrels of salt."

"Then the salt was to save the mine?"

"Of course; the solid ion changes; out there must be purified at least. Hang on to your stock and have patience."

"Yes, I guess I will; though I did feel pretty blue yesterday. We've got some chaps out our way who think they know it all, but when I go back and tell 'em we've got our mine salted from top to bottom, and don't care a copper what sort of weather comes whooping along, maybe they won't feel quite so smart." If they have to join any more out there I'll put 'em for next to it if we hold the hand; it goes further and gives better satisfaction."—Wall Street News.

KNEW HE WAS LYING. Two friends from the interior put up at a Galveston hotel and were given one room. The man in the next room overheard the following conversation about day: Just next morning:

"I say, Lill, have you seen Bill?"

"I've been wide awake for the last two hours."

"Lend me $5?"

"I've dozed off again."

"I know you were lying when you said you were wide awake."

THE SUPPRESSED NEGRO VOTE.

[From the N. Y. Tribune.]

In the Northern States, ten years ago, there were 5,408,084 male citizens of the voting age; in the South, 2,914,716. The South, according to the new census, has grown in population faster than the North, and, as it has no immigration of consequence, its increase in male citizens of the voting age must have been relatively still greater. Hence, the number of the citizens of the voting age at the North must be not more than about 7,000,000, while the number at the South must be more than 3,800,000. But the votes actually cast at the recent Presidential election were about 6,450,000 at the North, and 2,750,000 at the South. Less than 8 per cent. of the male citizens of voting age at the North failed to vote. But over 27.6 per cent. of the male citizens of voting age at the South either did not vote or did not get their votes counted. In 1870, the whole number of colored citizens of voting age, assuming that all colored persons of that age were citizens, was 931,665. The number of votes of which citizens of the voting age were deprived at the South—about 1,050,000—is therefore greater than the whole number of colored citizens of the voting age according to the census of 1870.

The census tables, which will soon appear, will show in what States this deprivation of the suffrage mainly occurred. But it is easy, from what is already known of the results of the census, to point out some of the States in which the wrong was greatest. The total vote last month is contrasted in the following table with the number of male citizens of the voting age ten years ago and with votes cast at previous elections in the same States:

States.	Vote, 1880.	Citizens, 1870.	Previous Vote	Date
Alabama,	127,733	201,046	169,726	1872
Georgia,	175,965	254,109	15 0-56	1876
Louisiana,	101,476	158,061	128,604	1872
Mississippi,	117,078	163,757	129,467	1872
Virginia,	215,745	260,040	233,228	1873
Total,	739,699	1,037,013	822,693

In these few States, the male citizens of the voting age numbered, ten years ago, about 300,000 more than the total vote now cast. It is shown by the late census that the population of these States has increased nearly 29 per cent., so that nearly or quite 300,000 voters must within ten years have been added to their population. If so, nearly 600,000 voters were deprived of the right of suffrage in these few States. And the records prove that, in spite of all former intimidation and massacre, a greater number of votes was actually cast in each of these States at former elections, and in four of them a greater number was cast eight or twelve years ago. It is not possible, in the face of these facts, to pretend that the late election was a free or honest one.

Moreover, it is notorious that in some other States the desired results were attained by wholesale stuffing of the ballot-boxes or frauds in the count. In South Carolina, for example, this is scarcely disputed, nor will it be denied as to Florida in the face of evidence to be presented. In these States, many thousand honest voters were robbed of their rights, and at the same time many thousand dishonest votes were cast or counted. This class of frauds makes the reported vote of the South greater than the actual and honest vote really was, and leaves the discrepancy between the actual vote and the number of persons entitled to vote still greater.

In 1860, the Southern States cast 1,276,579 votes, and the Northern 3,400,274 votes. With only 27 per cent. of the total vote the Southern States, by reason of the partial representation of property in slaves, then had 38 per cent. of the representation in Congress. With slavery abolished, and the colored people entitled to cast their own votes, the Southern States still have only about the same proportion of the whole vote that they cast in 1860. At the late election it was 29 per cent. But they enjoy a representation in Congress based upon the whole number of colored persons, and are claiming an increased representation in the next Congress because the very class of persons who are largely deprived of suffrage have increased in number more rapidly than other elements of the population. In effect, the ruling class at the South wishes to have all the share of political power to which the rapidly growing colored people are entitled, and to wield it at its own pleasure.

It is the duty of Congress to provide that elections in every part of the land shall be free and honest. This wholesale robbery of the rights of a million of citizens has become unendurable. No other question can take precedence of this; no other remaining evil so clearly threatens the very existence of free institutions. No southern man, who means to be upright and patriotic, will oppose any reasonable measure to secure, in all parts of the land, a fair vote and an honest count.

FIGURES DO NOT LIE.

CORRECTION OF W. H. MURRAY'S ARITHMETIC.

[From the N. Y. Journal of Commerce.]

It is a great pity that so many men talk at random in books, reviews and public lectures when they should learn wisdom from school boys' arithmetic. A lecturer in Music Hall, Boston, on a recent Sunday evening—Rev. Mr. Murray—is reported as dealing in glittering generalities of figures to disprove the theory of a final judgment of all men, and it would appear that his audience accepted his arithmetic as solid truth. We have nothing to do with his theories of the judgment, but there ought to be a judgment and condemnation in Boston of any man who delivers such trash to an audience having ordinary common school education. He is reported to have spoken thus:

Now the population of the earth is 1,000,000,000, and a generation dies every thirty years. In every thirty years, then, 1,000,000,000 of human beings go out of the world and 1,000,000,000 come in. Forty years ago the Church taught that the world was 6,000 years old. She don't to-day pretend to guess within 100,000 years how old the world is. Very well. What has been the population of the world since the race began? Who can estimate the number? By what arithmetic shall you compute the swarming millions? Take the globe and flatten it into a vast plain, 24,000 miles by 24, and would it accommodate but a fraction of the human beings that have lived upon its surface? Where is the locality of the judgment to be then? Can it have a locality?

Now make the wildest conceivable estimates: Suppose that the human race has existed on this earth 100,000 years, and that the population has never from the first day been smaller than this estimate for the present time, namely, 1,000,000,000. For the sake of easy calculation, instead of the estimate of thirty years to a generation, call it three generations to a century. There will then appear to have been three thousand generations of a thousand millions each, who, being assembled, require standing room. For a crowded meeting of men, women and children it would be ample estimate to give each two square feet of room. A square mile contains, in round numbers, 25,000,000 square feet, and 12,500,000 persons would stand on it. Therefore eighty square miles would hold a generation, and three thousand times that space would hold the population of a hundred thousand years. That is to say, 240,000 square miles would contain them, and, gathered in a parallelogram, they would stand in a space 600 miles long by 400 broad. They could be easily accommodated in one or two of our States.

Dead and buried side by side, they would require only five times their standing space, or (say) 1,200,000 square miles, and the United States of America has ample wild lands as yet unwanted and uncoupled to give them a cemetery. If any one wishes, he may estimate how many hundred thousand years of generations could find graves in this country without crowding on another.

Whoever will may imagine the population assembled in a circle, or in a vast theatre with floor above floor, each floor diminishing the surface area of the building. It will do people of vivid imagination good to reduce such imaginations to the facts of figures, and any school girl can do it.

But it is just as well before leaving the subject to say that the hundred thousand years of the reverend lecturer's imagination is as wild talk as his figures. Men of uncertain faith are very fond of saying that other men have no faith. Nothing can be more absurd than what he says about the church. The confused man who fell off a stage coach into the mud thought the coach had upset. Mr. Murray will soon find out that the Church, whatever its denominational name, is a great deal more steady in its ancient faith than are he and others who would gladly convince outsiders that the old coach has actually gone over.

In his lecture as reported he makes a sad jumble of two distinct subjects, the age of the world and the age of the human race on its surface. The men who hold notions about the extreme antiquity of the human race have been very few and have produced no sensible effect on the faith of the Church or the general opinion of the world, and among what are called scientists the present difference of opinion as to the age of the human race is limited to a comparatively short period. Bunsen's theory of a date B. C. 20,000 for Egyptian origins has vanished, and Mariette Bey's date of B. C. 5,000 for Menes (or Misraim) will satisfy the views of the most extreme among recognized men of sense.

The bone cave men have been met with the simple rules of evidence, which apply to their supposed discoveries as they apply to all questions of fact; and it is found that they have not proved in a single instance that human bones have been lying fifty, forty or ten centuries in those caves. The theory that the Mississippi had been for forty thousand years depositing drift, yet human bones found in the deposit disappeared in mist when Humphreys and Abbot, United States engineer officers on duty, having no theory to sustain, accurately observed and satisfactorily determined that the entire Delta of the Mississippi has required only four thousand years for its total deposit. It is no longer a question of religion against science, but a case in which common sense and a knowledge of the laws of evidence are demanding something more than assertion without proof, asking for facts in distinction from theory. Of the whole it has become the fashion to laugh a little at the fantastic theories of science falsely so called.

Meantime none of these theories have produced any sensible effect on the Church or its teachings. There are just as many good people and just as many great intellectual people as ever who still believe in and teach that the human race is about six thousand years old and that a deluge has once reduced its population to next to nothing. Faith in the old record of Moses is so prevalent, and there are so many millions of educated and reasonable people holding it, that it is really worth the while of boys and girls, and perhaps of some adults, to apply arithmetic to the facts as accepted by these good people of old and modern times. Thus in 6,000 years there are 180 generations, and as we know so little by historic evidence of the separate populations of former times in some parts of the world, and must make allowance for the deluge (which all nations believe to have occurred), we shall be more than safe in estimating one-half the present population as the average in all past generations. Then 180 generations each of 500,000,000 give us 99,000,000,000 for the whole human race. Graves of ten square feet for each would be easily found in each of quite a number of the States of the Union, and the assembly of all the generations of mankind would stand in a circle around Mont Blanc, Mount Washington or Mount Sinai, so near that every eye could see the summit not fifty miles distant.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

ITS LEGAL EFFECT AND APPLICATION.

To the Editor of the Whig and Courier:

Assuming what seems to be a conceded fact, that no candidate received more than a plurality of votes for Governor on Sept. 13th, 1880, the question is: Did that plurality elect a Governor? The answer to this question depends upon the construction to be given to the affirmative report made by the people on that day to the following question:

"Shall the Constitution be amended so as to provide for the election of Governor by a plurality instead or a majority?"

It is certain that no Governor was elected on that day by virtue of any Constitution in force when the votes were cast. The old provision of the Constitution requiring a majority was certainly in force, until the last ballot was thrown on election day. But did the people by their action then so amend the Constitution as to make a plurality by retro-active effect elect a Governor on that day? It is very clear, to my mind, that those who claim an election by a plurality must of necessity give a retro-active effect to the amendment, because there was no such "plurality" provision in existence when the votes deposited his ballot. In the proposed amendment he was not called upon to participate in the election of Governor by a plurality. He was not called upon in that proposition to participate in the election of Governor at all. What was he asked to do in that proposed amendment? He was asked "to provide for the election of Governor by a plurality." And so much he has done. He has made the provision for the election of Governor by a plurality; but so has not elected a Governor by a plurality. Actually electing a Governor, and making provision for the election of a Governor are two very different things. The one implies a present completed act, the other implies a preparation for future action.

My position does not call upon me to deny that the people might, by a proposition duly submitted to them, Constitutionally decree that the amendment should have a retro-active, or retro-spective effect, and that the amendment should be made to apply to the election of Governor on Sept. 13th, 1880. That question does not arise in this case, because no such proposition was submitted to them. I merely intend to say that the people were not invited to make any such decree, and have not voted upon that question.

It is a principle controlling all legal enactments, enunciated hundreds, perhaps thousands of times by the most eminent judges, that they shall have only a prospective operation unless the intention to give them a retro-spective operation is clearly expressed. In Hastings vs. Same, 15 Maine R. 434 Judge Shepley says: "In the case of Dash vs. Van Kleeck 7 Johns R. 477, Kent C. J., states it to be a principle in the English common law, as ancient as the law itself, that a statute, even of its omnipotent parliament, is not to have a retro-spective effect." In Given vs. Marr, 27 Maine R. 212 Judge Tenney puts it in italics. "*No statute is to be held retrospective * * * unless such shall be the necessary construction.*" In Rogers vs. Greenhunt, 58 Maine R. 395, Judge Kent says: "We never hold an act to be retrospective, unless it is plain that no other construction can be fairly given." Similar opinions ad infinitum might be quoted.

Now if such is the carefulness of the Judges in relation to ordinary statutes which are comparatively of little importance and which may be so easily modified or repealed, how much greater is the necessity for the application of the same carefulness in the construction of any change in an instrument so sacred as a Constitution of Government, and which requires so much machinery for its modification.

So clearly apparent is it that the amendment can have no effect except upon future elections, that it is believed no question would have been raised upon it, were it not for the provision in the resolve providing for the amendment in the following words: "A plurality of the votes cast and returned for Governor at the annual September election for the year eighteen hundred and eighty, shall determine the election of Governor for the years eighteen hundred and eighty-one and two."

This provision it must be admitted is very clear also as clear as the real question which was submitted to the people. It contains no ambiguity, and there can be no doubt as to its meaning. But it has this one fatal defect: It was never submitted to the people. It remains a mere declaration of two-thirds of both Houses, which undoubtedly they intended to submit to the people, but did not. Its non-submission was indeed an act of negligence, a blunder, somewhat excusable in the minds of men agitated by the unprecedented and inconceivable turmoils and distractions of last winter, and who may not have regained perfect equanimity on the 27th of January; but still the fact remains, it was not submitted. Had they delayed the subject till March 15th, when they proposed the other amendment relating to the term of office of Senators and Representatives "the difficulty might not have happened. This last amendment has to such complexion. The proposition called upon the people in unmistakable terms to vote upon the question whether the biennial term of office should apply to the Senators and Representatives elected in the year 1880.

But the above declaration though not submitted has this special significance. It shows the opinion of both Houses that in order to affect the election of 1880 it was necessary to incorporate the declaration into the amendment; that without it the amendment would only operate in futuro, as is always the case when no provision is made for a retro-spective operation. They had the same opinion in relation to the representative and Senatorial amendment, and did accordingly incorporate such provision into it. But their action has this difference. That retro-spective provision was in the other case submitted to the people, while in the former it was not.

Suppose the above quoted declaration of both Houses had not been made till the session of 881. Would any one maintain that such a declaration then made would have any effect upon an amendment voted upon in September, 1880? It is obvious that a Legislative declaration made in 1880 can have no greater force than one made in 1881, so far as pertains to a construction of amendment of the Constitution. Such declarations are but idle ceremonies when never made, and would be of no avail in the courts. Legislatures can enact any constitutional laws, but cannot amend the Constitution.

To give effect to this declaration would be to set a very dangerous precedent. The most illustrious writers upon constitutional law have said, and such must be the observation of all intelligent minds, that the greatest danger to our Constitutions of Government is to be apprehended from Legislative encroachment. There is a constant disposition on the part of legislators to enlarge their powers, and by so doing to transcend the constitutional bound. It is the business of the courts, several times exercised in this State, to bring them back and confine them within their proper limits. Many laws have been declared unconstitutional by our Supreme Court. It is an assumption on the part of both Houses, a clear case of usurpation for them to decide either by a majority or by a two-thirds vote that the amendment shall have a retro-active effect. It assumes an impossibility, viz: that the Legislature can of themselves alter the fundamental law.

The question actually submitted to the people is utterly free from ambiguity and is as plain a proposition as can be embodied in the English language—so clear that viewed by itself, disentangled from the aforesaid Legislative declaration, the comments of newspapers and orators, it is almost impossible for the ordinary mind to misapprehend its meaning. Viewed by itself, itself being its own best interpreter, there is no room for serious doubt or cavil. According to the uniform course of judicial interpretation in this State (and it is believed such has been the practice in all the states of the Union) it became a constitutional rule of action in all future elections, but not at the election at which it was "provided for". And yet if the people had been asked in due form it is highly probable that they might have said that the amendment should apply to the election of Governor on that day. But they have never responded to that question, because they were never asked. It cannot be made to apply, so as to affect the election of Sept. 13, 1880, except by reversing the whole course of judicial construction in the United States from the foundation of the Government to the present time.

The proposition here contended for is so clear to many minds that it is asking too much of them to not believe otherwise. Every member of the Legislature, before commencing to do any business is required to take an oath, to support the Constitution of the United States and of the State so long as I shall continue a citizen thereof." With such an oath upon him he cannot afford to commit what to him would be moral perjury, for the purpose of exhibiting a cheap mag animity, or even a Christian courtesy—not for Venice. Grant that all the votes to a man thought that the amendment did apply to the election of Governor on Sept. 13th, 1880, for the reasons before stated, then they were simply deceived. The Constitution cannot be made to conform to a popular error. If it is said that the intention of the voter must govern, then I ask how will you get at that intention? If the language of a legal proposition is clear what right have you to resort to anything extraneous to control that intention? Will you ask the voter what he meant, what newspapers he read, or to what party he belonged? It is said of a distinguished gentleman in Bangor whose word or whose Democracy were never doubted, who probably never but once in his life voted anything but a square Democratic ticket, that he having two ballots in his hand by mistake put the Garfield ballot into the box. Has he any remedy? Does the fact that he intended to vote, and thought that he was voting for Hancock affect the matter? Should not his vote be counted just as it reads even though it might decide the electoral vote of Maine, and Maine decide the election of President? One vote of an individual once decided the election of Governor of Massachusetts, and one electoral vote decided the election of the present President of the United States. The ballot must be counted just as it reads and so must the vote on the question: "Shall the Constitution be amended so as to provide for the election of Governor by a plurality instead of a majority." Any other rule, a rule of laxity, in a matter so sacred as the Constitution, would be a most dangerous precedent, an entering wedge, a commencement to undermine the foundation of our liberties.

It would undoubtedly be pleasanter to come to a different conclusion and to declare the Fusion candidate elected, in order to avoid the sarcasms of those who would probably accuse the Republican party of counting out their Governor by dishonest means, or in other words, to avoid the accusation of Gareelon sm. I admit it a decent man would wish to avoid that imputation, but no matter for that, no matter what the liabilities to misrepresentation may be, if he cannot be counted in without the violation of one's oath let him stay out forever and a day. The Republican party can bear the contumelies of their enemies, but not the reproach of conscience. They can better bear the slanders of their foes, than endure a violation of the Constitution. We owe the Fusion party exact justice, but a St. Paul would not pay them with generosity. Let the Republican party, like an individual, have the moral courage to do right, plough a straight furrow, turning neither to the right nor to the left, keeping the Constitution straight in the eye and there will be no consequences which they need to face or which they cannot face with the consciousness of rectitude.

JOSIAH CROSBY.

Dexter, Dec. 4, 1880.

GARFIELD'S CABINET.

The Inter Ocean, which invited opinions as to the formation of Garfield's cabinet, prints a summary of an immense number of letters received from every State except California, Oregon, Nevada and Rhode Island, as follows: First, demonstrating the great popularity of Gen. Grant who is recommended by most of the writers for Secretary of State; a general desire for the retention of Secretary Sherman; third, universal demand for a stalwart Cabinet; fourth, prevailing opinion that such men as Conkling, Blaine and Logan, remain in the Senate instead of occupying Cabinet positions; fifth, a demand for a practical Western man in the department of the Interior.

NEWS AND MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

Wm. Parker, of Raleigh, N. C., has been indicted for the murder of General Grymes, who was killed in August last, by a concealed assassin. An exciting trial is expected.

C. Pelham Clinton, the alleged bogus "bond," was arraigned again Friday, at New York, and remanded to await the arrival of the extradition warrant of Salt Lake. James P. Neal confronted the prisoner, and said he met him in 1875, at Portland, Me., where he was stopping at the Falmouth Hotel. He there went under the name of Lieut. Dennison, of the Royal Navy.

The Christiancy divorce suit, has apparently come to an unexpected termination. William H. Halschuck, clerk at the St. James Hotel, Washington, where it was alleged Mrs. Christiancy's misconduct occurred has denied that he had ever seen the defendant before. The suit was based on a previous affidavit of this witness.

B. F. Allen, President of the defunct Cook County National Bank, charged with making false a report of the condition of the bank, has been acquitted.

Our statement of the existence of serious difference of opinion among the best lawyers as to the application and effect of the plurality amendment voted upon in September last, is further confirmed by the carefully considered opinion of Hon. Josiah Crosby, of Dexter, which we print this morning, and which arrives at an entirely different conclusion from that reached by Mr. Paine and Mr. Hasklock. The high standing of Mr. Crosby as a lawyer, the cool deliberation with which his opinions are formed, and the clearness with which they are stated will certainly entitle them to very respectful consideration.

HELPING BUSINESS!

The late organ of the Garcelon gang and more recently of the Barnum gang of political forgers, but which still more recently sent out from Central-st. the proclamation that it had ceased to be partisan and proposed to devote its great energies to fostering the business interests of the community, has entered upon its new role with peculiar zeal.

For the sole purpose of making a fling at the Republican party, that non-partisan champion of the business interests of Bangor seeks to contribute toward the stimulation of healthy trade by the remarkable method of sending out into the country such deliberately mischievous and politically malignant statements as these:

Well, Garfield appears to have been elected on the 2d of November, but the lively business that was anticipated has failed to put in an appearance as yet; on the contrary we have had an exceptionally and almost phenomenally dull month in Bangor. Complaints of business depression seem to be more universal and apparently well founded than at any time since the dark days succeeding the panic of 1873, which, strangely enough, were also the bitter fruit into which ripened the fair buds of Republican promise in the Presidential campaign of eight years ago.

The Republican victory and the prostration of trade, now as then, came together. Do they occupy the relat on of cause and effect? Are our merchants, whose stores are filled with large stocks purchased in anticipation of the the "good times coming," indebted to the success of the Republican party for the persistency with which their goods stay on their shelves?

A more unwarranted and contemptible stab at the business interests of the city could not be given. While the retail trade in our climate must inevitably be checked during such weather as we have had in November, with its consequent effect upon the travelling, it is well known that business of all kinds has been prosperous in Bangor during the present year, and our merchants have every reason to expect a most lively and profitable holiday trade in spite of the Central street paper's malicious efforts to frighten away customers by inventing laments about "prostration of trade."

The timeliness of such a lugubrious proclamation will doubtless be appreciated by the enterprising merchants of Bangor who are just now preparing for the busiest season of the year.

"BALDY" SMITH'S WRATH.

Gen. W. F. Smith, better known in the army as "Baldy" Smith, is one of the Police Commissioners of New York and was one of the most active of the Hancock managers in the late campaign. He visited this State during the summer to recruit Hancock "veterans" but found he could hardly muster a corporal's guard. In New York city he appears to have been equally unsuccessful in some projects for using his authority as Police Commissioner to help Democratic schemes. The N. Y. Times says:

Gen. Smith evidently intends to do all he can to punish Superintendent Walling for thwarting a very crafty plot of the General a few hours before the polls opened on the 2d ultimo. Mr. Walling had issued orders to the Police force not to serve warrants handed to them by citizens. In doing this he was supported by the rules of the department. It was well known that any warrants taken to Superintendent Walling would be properly executed, and the real object of Mr. Walling's order was to defeat a plan to take patrolmen away from the polls under pretense of giving them warrants to serve. Late on the night of Nov. 1, Gen. Smith and a man with a slouch hat, who was recognized as Gen. Hancock's confidential agent in Ohio and Indiana, went to Police Headquarters and induced Telegraph Operator Wynne to send out a general order, which nullified Mr. Walling's order. President French heard of this revolutionary proceeding, and, accompanied by Superintendent Walling, drove to Police Headquarters, when, at 1 A. M., Nov. 2, Mr. Walling issued an order which resulted in Gen. Smith's order being disregarded. The report of the committee appointed yesterday will, it is predicted, prove amusing reading.

"IN FULL SYMPATHY."

The following special despatch from Augusta to the Boston Globe was approvingly quoted in the Commercial of Nov. 24th, 1879:

"Hon. H. M. Plaisted, ex-Congressman and ex-Attorney-General, was in the city Friday and expressed himself IN FULL SYMPATHY WITH THE GOVERNOR AND COUNCIL in the stand they have taken toward proper and rigid enforcement of the laws."

The Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution (Dem.) says that if the programme which Governor Boutwell has mapped out is adopted by General Garfield "it will utterly annihilate the hopes of those who are engaged in the effort to gradually win our people away from the unprofitable past."—Bos on Journal.

The "programme which Governor Boutwell has mapped out" is that there shall be a free ballot and honest count in every State in this Union, and that men shall occupy seats in Congress by virtue of fair elections instead of usurping them by shotgun outrages and shameless ballot-frauds. If that is not just what the great mass of the people of the North mean in winning the National victory of 1880, we seriously misinterpreted their spirit and purpose.

A Washington correspondent says: "Preparations for the meeting of Congress are going busily on at the Capitol and also in all buildings where rooms or board are to be had. The crowd is expected to be greater than ever before. I cannot see how all who desire accommodations will procure them for inauguration week. From Philadelphia alone, up to Sunday last, 1550 persons had asked for rooms at one hotel in this city for the first week in March."

The reader of Mr. Hewitt's weak and spiteful letter to the N. Y. Nation will readily conclude that Mr. Abram S. Hewitt is the person least benefited by Mr. Abram S. Hewitt's revival of the facts of his eager sponsorship for the most disgraceful fraud ever attempted in politics.

A summary of the operations of the Patent Office during the last fiscal year, prepared by Commissioner Marble for the forthcoming report of the Secretary of the Interior, shows that in the twelve months ended June 30, 1880, the office received 20,990 applications for patents for inventions, and granted 12,56., besides 496 "reissues" and 569 patents for designs. The receipts of the Patent Office from fees of various kinds amounted to $730,547, and the total expenses for salaries and all other objects were $538,926, showing a net revenue to the Government of $191,621.

"EXCLUSIVENESS."

[From the Providence Journal.

It is not only Benjamin Disraeli who can invent a happy obscurity of phrases, nor is Artemus Ward alone in the conception of humor about "persuading" a man with a club. Sometimes such fortunate epithets are evolved by circumstances without the midwifery of a great statesman or humorist, and their individual authorship remains forever obscure. A remarkable instance of this happy felicity of phrase evolved from circumstances is to be found in the report of the proceedings of the State Board of Canvassers of South Carolina, in regard to the vote for Sheriff in Williamsburg. The report says that there was some "exclusiveness" in the count of the votes for the Republican candidates. "Exclusiveness" is a good word, and as the negro minstrel has it, should be stuffed. It was "exclusiveness" that kept the Republican voters from the polling places in the Shoe String district by a system of mock challenges and restricted voting arrangements. It was "exclusiveness" that threw out six thousand votes for the Republican opponent to Gen. Chalmers, because they were marked by a printer's dash. "Exclusiveness" will go a great way toward accounting for the defeat of the Republican candidates in Southern districts, and if the vocabulary is only extended so as to take in its antithesis, and "inclusiveness" is also used, then the whole operation of securing tissue ballots and accommodating Democratic voters, while Republican ballots were thrown out and Republican voters prevented from approaching the polls, will be explained in a manner to happily banish all ideas of force and fraud. Such harsh words as intimidation and cheating will be no longer used to explain the condition of political justice and the rule of the superior race at the South, and the serenity of the little operations necessary to secure it will be happily characterized by the more appropriate epithets. Next to the description of slavery as a "paternal institution," there has not been anything more felicitous than "exclusiveness in the count," and it is a decisive proof against the degeneracy of Southern statesmanship. The policy that could produce such a phrase as that has not yet a future.

[From the Rockland Free Press, Dec. 1.]

THE ELECTION OF GOVERNOR.

A CONTROVERTED QUESTION.

An earnest and interesting discussion has arisen over the election of Governor of this State. In this controversy the Republicans are not arrayed upon one side and the opposite parties upon the other, but the Republicans are much divided among themselves in opinion as to where the legal line of duty lies. So far as we have heard any expressions of opinion among Republicans, it shows a unanimous desire that in the decision of the matter strict justice shall be done, and no advantage taken of technicalities in the slightest degree after the Garcelon example.

The difficulty now existing comes from the fact that neither of the candidates for Governor had a majority of the votes cast in September, and that the amendment of the Constitution making the Governor elective by a plurality, and voted upon by the people at that time, does not clearly apply to that election. There is ground for reasonable and honest difference of opinion upon the matter, and even lawyers, the best in the State, disagree in regard to it. The Rev. Mr. Cheney of Bates College, who is a good staunch Republican, argues that because the plurality amendment was a Republican measure, therefore the party is morally bound to see to it that Plaisted is given the benefit of it as if submitted to the people and adopted just as its originators intended—though it was not—and that he be made Governor without raising a question as to the legality of the proceeding. He even contends that to do so would be in harmony with the spirit of the opinions of the Supreme Court of last winter. There are also some papers in the State, among them the Portland Press and perhaps we may properly include the Lewiston Journal which take nearly the same ground. Mr. Cheney assumes to speak for the clergy as a body, and threatens the anathemas of the pulpit against the Republicans, unless they accept his view of the matter, waiving any legal scruples which they may entertain.

Now we believe there are many men who are as desirous that strict justice should be done to Mr. Plaisted and his party as Mr. Cheney is, and who would, do as much as he to give him his position if it is legal it is to be established, who see no reason whatever for giving it to him without legal title. He is not the choice of a majority. Only by the greatest liberality can a plurality of the votes be counted us for him even if they can at all. Then again, when his friends had the counting of the votes he set up precedents of fairness—much less of liberality—which entitle him to any special consideration at the hands of Republicans. He approved not only all technical objections which the Garcelon Government raised to oust Republicans elected, but his voice was never heard in denunciation of the proved frauds and forgeries. Should the Republicans of Maine be magnanimous with such a man and such a party? We doubt even the good policy of such a course—though we would not withhold from them one jot or title of what belongs to them.

We believe that there is but one course open which can give entire satisfaction upon this matter. The attempt to amend the constitution has left us in a muddle, upon which not only the common people differ, but legal men as well. Why, then, should there be any reluctance in calling upon the Supreme Court once more for its opinion? Whatever the decision of that honorable body may be, will certainly command the ready acquiescence of the entire Republican party, and will indicate to the Legislature to assemble, if they think it have any in the premises, so the no member, acting under the solemn obligation of an official oath, will entertain scruples as to what he should do.

GEN. GRANT ON THE VOLUNTEER SOLDIERS. Gen. N. P. Banks delivered a lecture on "The American Volunteer Soldier," at Chickering Hall, New York, Wednesday night. On the platform were General Grant and the Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix, who presided. Gen. Shaler and Gen. H. E. Tremaine were also present. At the close of the lecture Gen. Grant was loudly called for, and finally rose and spoke as follows:

Ladies and Gentlemen: After listening to the eloquent and justly high eulogy on the American volunteer soldier by Major General Banks, you do not with to have your reflections disturbed by any informal remarks of mine. The Government owes much to the service of its volunteer soldiers. Too much credit cannot be paid them. The very fact that the country can raise so great and good an army in such an emergency as our late civil war, is a proof that we have institutions in which all the people have an equal part; that we have a Government not for the privileged class, but for the people and by the people. When the peaceful citizen changes to the soldier, he does so readily, feeling that he is fighting for himself when he is fighting for his Government. I hope and feel that the country will not again have to call upon such numbers of its citizens for support. I am confident that we will not have another civil war, but should it be menaces of a foreign foe cause a call to arms, we will find the same support and readiness in organizing an army as in 1861.

What has been done in New York will not be forgotten. The loyalty of the Irish-American element to the Democratic party has not been as reliable lately as it once was. The action of a large portion of the party in New York is a direct insult to that element. It is equivalent to a declaration from 18 000 Democrats that they will not vote for a Catholic candidate, on a Democratic ticket, but that they will vote against him.—N. Y. Tablet, Catholic.

HOW THE UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT IS OPENED.

To begin with, there is a degree of dignity and stately bearing about the court and its members which permeates even to the most humble attache. There is a quiet in the court room which recalls the Sabbath of the Covenanters. When one enters, the involuntary feeling comes on that the room is set aside only for the contemplation of the sober side of life, and woe to him who jibes or jokes in the presence of the court. The court is opened about this fashion. At 12 o'clock (noon) the justices come in from the consulting room and take their seats on the bench. Away to the left of the chamber is seen a youthful officer, whose business is to catch the first glimpse of the advancing judges. Then comes three raps with a ponderous gavel by the same officer. This is meant as a signal for the audience to rise. Then, with the Chief Justice in advance, the judges enter from the right of the chamber. To the rear of the justices' seats is an aisle. In the centre is an arched entrance for the Chief Justice. Through this aisle the judges file and take position on the right and left. None enter until the Chief Justice emerges from the centre entrance. After all have filed in, the Chief Justice makes a graceful obeisance to the standing audience. Then the justices take seats, a stroke of the gavel is made and the audience seats itself. The opening of the court falls upon a youthful officer. It is after the old English form, "Oh, yes! oh, yes," etc., and concludes with the words, "God bless the honorable Supreme Court." The court is now ready for business. All the justices are clad in black silk gowns with an ecclesiastical cut. In the despatch of business the Chief Justice is quite expeditious. He is always ready with a reply to a question, and eminently satisfactory. The Justices on the bench assume different attitudes. Justice Miller slinks down low in his chair, and but if he can be seen of him but the top of his head; so also does Justice Bradley. The Chief Justice sits erect most of the time when not hearing an argument, busy in consulting the calendar. Judge Harlan is the most striking in appearance of any of the Judges. He is tall, well built and sits erect.—Washington Star.

Professor Blackie hits the nail on the head when he advises young men at college to give more of their attention to studies which will be of use to them in after life, instead of expending so much time and energy in purely speculative or theoretical investigations. As Blackie says, it is not so important to know how we got here as it is to prepare ourselves to make the most of our opportunities now that we are here. There is altogether too much retrospect on nowadays.—Pall. No. American.

The discussion about Secretary Sherman's hotel bills is about the meanest which has disgraced journalism for a long time. Somebody will start a report next that the Secretary owes his washerwoman a month's pay, and there will be newspapers to take up the subject and solemnly discuss it.—Tribune.

The official returns of Colorado, give the Garfield Electors an average majority of 3,000. Pitkin, (Rep.) for Governor, has a little over 5,000 majority, leading the remainder of the State ticket by about 2,300. The total vote was about 54,000—an increase of 26,000 over 1878.

GEN. GARFIELD'S HEALTH.

A Sensational Report Contradicted.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 2. The attention of Richard Smith, editor of the Cincinnati Gazette, having been called to the publication of an interview in which he is made to say that Gen. Garfield is in a serious condition physically, and that he needs careful nursing, says that he made no such statement. What he does know on the subject is that traveling with Gen. Garfield from Washington he observed that he was troubled with indigestion, the result of overwork. Smith and other of Garfield's friends think he is overtaxed by visitors coming to Mentor and that he should go somewhere where he could escape this tax. Nobody considers his physical condition as at all serious.

A TEMPERANCE SERMON.

Two Children Burned to death through the Carelessness of a Drunken Mother.

TORONTO, Dec. 2. Considerable excitement prevails over a tragedy which took place in this city this morning. Two children, aged five months and three years, respectively, fell a sacrifice to the recklessness of a drunken mother. The woman who is the wife of James Casey lived in Carrs Lane in a thickly-populated district and has been drinking heavily lately. Last evening a sister of Casey saw her condition and had the children taken from her and put them in bed. This morning the sister again visited the house, found the children burned to death and the mother in a state of stupefaction from drink. In one corner of the room were the signs of an extinguished fire with a broken-here gin bottle and a dead cat lying on the charred floor. The mother gave a rambling and senseless account of having upset the lamp and set fire to the room killing her children. She said she had extinguished the flames once but they caught fire again. Mrs. Casey is under arrest and an inquest is being held. Two other children of Mrs. Casey were burned to death some time ago under suspicious circumstances.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2. The Yale Lock Co. have brought before the U. S. Courts a claim for royalty for the use of their locks in the various post offices and treasury offices of the country.

A Festive Female Marries Fourteen Men for the Purpose of Robbing Them.

Mrs. Theress Reinenschneider, alias Auerbach, alias Graw, alias Temple, a prepossessing young woman of 25 years, was arrested last night in Brooklyn, charged with bigamy and grand larceny. From what can be learned, the prisoner has been making matrimonial alliances, becoming the wife of different men for the purpose, it is alleged, of robbing them. The police say that the prisoner has married about fourteen different Germans, and that she had three or four husbands in Newark. A young man whom she recently married was arrested as her accomplice in the larceny.

August Bernesee, a fresco painter of Newark, N. J., to whom she was married August 23, determined to pursue her after she had robbed him of clothing, jewelry and money to the amount of $768, and he had the satisfaction of causing her imprisonment last night. She uttered a scream when the detectives entered her room, and running to a mantel, she tried to swallow oxalic acid. Some of Berensee's property was found upon her, together with twenty-four pawn tickets.

The prisoners, giving the names of Mr. and Mrs. John Reinenschneider, broke down in the station-house and wept like children. The man said he was only 22 years old. The prisoners were locked up to await extradition to New Jersey. Reinenschneider was married to the woman October 30, 1877, by Rev. Francis Schneider of this city, who, in another bigamy case in Brooklyn, Monday, was accused of running a matrimonial bucket-shop. Schneider, in that case, said that although he had been a clergyman twenty years, he never had a church. He said he had married thirty couples in Nov-mber, and nearly 500 within the year. Five of the men Mrs. Reinenschneider married are known, but nine are not yet accounted for.

The State and the Railroads.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1. In a long letter to the Chamber of Commerce ex-Judge Black gives his opinion that the roads of the State belong to the State and not to corporations. The powers of the corporations are merely delegated to them and the States have a clear right to protect the people against railroad corporations.

Vessel Burned.

The steamer Devon, from Bristol, passed on the 27th a burning vessel, supposed to be loaded with petroleum. The name could not be ascertained, nor were there any signs of life on board.

Chamber of Commerce.

—After a long discussion in the New York Chamber of Commerce to-day, a resolution was passed that the National Bankrupt act for the distribution of insolvent estates and for the discouragement of insolvency, will promote the general well-being by confirming confidence in business transactions, and greatly increase the inter-state trade.

Resolutions were also offered and referred to a committee, declaring that Congress should early enact suitable legislation for the distribution of the Geneva Award to the persons entitled to it; deprecating the delay in distributing the Award, and declaring that this neglect to act, regardless of the causes that may have produced it, was developing a wide-spread, and well founded sentiment, that international arbitration was useless and abortive, if the rewards resulting from it were to be detained in the Treasury.

MISSOURI.

Railroad News.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 2. A. Mitchell, late general manager, announces that the New York Trust Co., as trustee, has returned the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Rail road to the possession of the company, and Jay Gould as president will assume control of the road. A. A. Talmage will be general manager of the consolidated Missouri, Pacific and Missouri, Kansas & Texas roads.

WASHINGTON.

Annual Report of the Secretary of the Navy.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2. The annual report of the Secretary of the Navy shows that the net expenditures for the fiscal year were $2,141,682.23 less than the amount applicable therefor. He recommends that the Secretary of the Navy be authorized by law to draw upon the commandant for the extraordinary expenses for loss or waste, and loss in excess of allowance for each ship as established by law.

He calls attention to the importance of securing unanimity by an international arrangement between the United States and other governments, relative to the rules for navigation of the sea, and urges the importance of definite action on the part of Congress without further delay, and says: The amended regulations for this purpose which are proposed by the British Government and adopted in all maritime nations except the United States, should be made statutory by an act of Congress.

VIRGINIA.

Arrested for Refusing to Receive Votes.

MANCHESTER, Dec. 2. Three election Judges of this city have been arrested for refusing to receive the votes of a number of persons, mostly negroes, whom the Judges allege did not exhibit the proper tax receipts.

THE PRESIDENT-ELECT

RECEIVES A DEPUTATION AT MENTOR.

Gen. Garfield's Address.

Address of the President-elect to the Ohio Electoral College.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 2. The members of the Ohio Electoral College and State officers who went to Mentor to-day were addressed by Gen. Garfield, who, after expressing his thanks said:

If I were to look upon the late campaign and its results merely in the light of a personal struggle, and personal success, it would probably be as gratifying as anything could be in the history of politics.

If my own conduct during the campaign has been in any way a help and strength to the cause I am glad. It is not always an easy thing to behave well, and if as a candidate my behavior under trying circumstances has met your approval I am greatly gratified.

In so far as I can interpret the best aspirations and purposes of our august sovereign (the people) I shall seek to realize them. You and I, and those who have acted with us in years past, believe our sovereign loves liberty and desires for all the inhabitants of the Republic peace and prosperity under the sway of just and equal laws.

Gentlemen, I thank you for the hope that you have expressed that in the arduous and great work before us we may maintain our standard of nationality and promote all that is good and worthy in this country, and that during the coming four years we may raise just as large a crop of peace, prosperity, justice, liberty and culture as it is possible for 49,000,000 of people to raise.

GEORGIA.

Cattle Exposition.

ATLANTA, Dec. 2. At a large meeting of business men this afternoon the International Cattle Exposition was organized as follows: President, Senator Brown of Georgia, with twenty-five Vice Presidents, from the principal cities and manufacturing towns in the country. Edward Atkinson is on the Executive Committee, and J. H. McMillen of Biddeford, on the Finance Committee. A Grand Exposition will be held at Atlanta next October.

ILLINOIS.

Alleged Blackmail.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2. Gen. McDowell to-day brought a suit for $20,000 damages against Wm. Henry Smith, Collector of Customs, and Wm. J. Kuhns, for an alleged conspiracy in encouraging the prosecution of a bogus charge of seduction against him.

FOREIGN NEWS.

CANADA.

Cold Weather and Snow Throughout the Dominion.

TORONTO, Dec. 2. The meteorological department this morning reports that snow has fallen heavily or lightly throughout Canada, except over the Gulf of St. Lawrence. The weather is considerably colder in the west and northwest. The temperature at Fort Garry last night was 18 degrees below zero.

Affairs in Ireland.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2. A London special mentions the report that the Duke of Leinster, whose immense estates in the County Kildare, covering 70,000 acres, yield nearly 60,000 pounds of income in ordinary times, has served all his tenants with notice to quit. The report is not credited in London as such a course would lead to the organization of the peasantry against the landlords.

A Dublin despatch says: The real state of the county is difficult if not impossible to discover. Only a small proportion of the outrages and violence reach the public, for the local newspaper correspondents in the country are comparatively few while the police reports made to the castle are kept secret.

The movement is extending to the north of Ireland and it is reported that Lord Lurgan has refused the petition of six hundred tenants asking a reduction of 50 per cent. in rents. He offers a reduction of 10 per cent. This is the first conflict between landlords and tenants in the north of Ireland.

It is stated that the Orangemen are joining the Land League in all parts of Ireland. The outrage near Tralee excites universal indignation. It appears that the bailiff's name was Hanlan, that he was in charge of a vacant house, and the men who attacked him were armed with rifles and bayonets. He was taken out of bed and made to kneel on the ground. His assailants first slit his right ear with a penknife and made him swear never to interfere between landlord and tenant. Then they slit his left ear in the same way and made him swear loyalty to the tenants' cause. He then fainted.

Yesterday at one of Mr. Danforth's teams was scraping ice near the Katahdin House, the horses broke through into the river but got out again all right.

A party of Boston gentlemen propose to make an annual moose hunting excursion to this State in the early part of this month. The party promises to be a large one this year.

The Maine Central Railroad Company, on Sunday last, placed in position a new bridge across the Upper Wescott stream, a few miles from Belfast. The bridge is about 100 feet in length.

A civil engineer in making a survey of the rail road route between Dexter and Guilford as we are informed. However this may be it is thought by many that when the Maine Central is pushed from Dexter, it will tap the B. & P. in this vicinity.—Dover Observer.

A correspondent writes: The Boston Comedy Company have played in the Town Hall, Oldtown, the past three evenings, to large and appreciative audiences. To-night they perform the great drama of "Ten Nights in the Bar Room." The company have given excellent satisfaction and will remain until Tuesday next.

ACCIDENT ON THE ST. JOHN AND MAINE. The injuries sustained by Mr. Alex. Woodman in the recent accident on the St. John and Maine, between Westfield and Newport, are more serious than was at first supposed. Though constantly attended by a physician, his condition is very critical. The wound on his head is difficult to handle.

NORTHPORT. Cottage lots at Northport continue to sell, and the indications are that another season a large number of cottages will be built. William E. Mahoney has sold to Frank B. Knowlton, of Belfast, a half acre south of the Camp Ground, and a cottage lot to James F. Woodbury of Brewer. W. C. Tuttle, of Belfast, has just built on the grounds a large building to be used in his photographing business.—Belfast Journal.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING. A young lady from Brewer, who is employed in a store on Main street, had a narrow escape from drowning Wednesday. She was on her way home to dinner and started across the ice, when she fell through a hole into the water. She managed to cling to the ice until her cries brought the assistance of a small boy, who helped her out none the worse for her cold bath.

IN A NEW DRESS. The Lewiston Journal of yesterday came to us in a bright new dress of type from the Boston Type Foundry, and looked neater and handsomer than ever. The make-up shows of the new suit to advantage and our contemporary may well feel proud of its new clothes. We congratulate the Journal upon the evidence of its well-earned prosperity.

LEAP-YEAR DANCE. The farewell leap year dance occurred at Music Hall last evening and was a pleasant success. The attendance was large, there being a good many spectators, and some eighty couples on the floor, and everyone seemed to be enjoying themselves thoroughly. The floor was very politely managed by the ladies who of course had entire charge of the dance. Attleboro Jameson served an excellent supper in Hibern an Hall.

NOT ACCUSTOMED TO GAS. A young lady at the Bangor House created quite a sensation Wednesday night by blowing the gas out in her room. It seems that she retired early in the evening, and when the gentleman who occupied the next room went up-stairs, his wife called his attention to the fact that the gas was escaping badly somewhere in their vicinity. A hurried examination followed which led to the discovery that the gas came from the next room, and the gentleman immediately notified Mr. Reach, who succeeded in arousing the young lady after vigorous pounding at the door for some minutes. The room was completely full of gas, and if the discovery had not occurred just as it did, the accident would have resulted seriously.

A FEMALE TRAMP. We are informed that a female tramp is making herself very numerous in certain sections of ward seven. She has been going from house to house asking for a chance to sleep, and usually manages to call at a late hour, so that the hospitable occupants hardly feel like turning her away. She is about twenty years old, gives the name of Nellie Murph, and claims a residence in Boston. It is thought that she is a little weak minded as she insists that she is in search of a lost, strayed or stolen lover.

HUNTING UNDER DIFFICULTIES. Maj. J. T. Richards, of Gardiner, Col. Heath, of Waterville, and a gentleman residing in Portland, got home last week from a hunting trip in Moosehead lake country. The cold snap caught them on the wrong side of the big pond, and the ice not strong enough to bear them, but too strong to boat, cut them off. They had to swamp a road three miles and then having struck an old road walked twelve miles. It took them four days to get out and then they had to send a team in after their supplies. They shot four caribou, and had a right good time.

A COLD NIGHT WHEN THEY GOT LEFT. The passengers on the steamer Charles Houghton, which formerly plied on this river, had rather an unpleasant experience last week, as the boat was running from Eastport to Calais. A few miles below Calais the boat was obliged to anchor on account of the vapor arising from the water. The passengers, some thirty-five in number, excepting the ladies, who adjourned to the ladies' cabin, were obliged to accommodate themselves as best they could. The cold in the saloon was so intense that sleep was impossible, and those who attempted to lie out on the side seats soon found their teeth chattering, and were compelled to assist those who had already gathered around the stove to keep that important factor warm. Many added to the agony of the occassion by singing "Home Sweet Home."

A PLEASANT ENTERTAINMENT. The entertainment last evening at the vestry of the Universalist church, given by the ladies of the Floral Society, was well attended. The programme was as follows: Piano Duett, by Misses Mattie and May Brett; Reading, "Our Minister's Sermon," by Miss Eliza Eddy; Duett, "Dost Thou Remember," by Miss Dakin and Mr. Holden; Reading, "Biddy McGinnis at the Photographer's," by Miss Low; Song, "Flower Girl," by Miss Chapman, encore "My Dearest Heart;" Recitation, "A Royal Princess," by Mrs. Dr. Plummer; Piano solo, selection from Chopin, by Miss Lincoln; Duett, Mrs. Wasgatt and Mr. Holden, "I live and love thee," encore, "Music on the waves;" Reading, "Miscellaneous Group and the McWilliams," by Miss Annie Hole. The supper from six to eight o'clock was finely served and well patronized.

SUDDEN DEATH. Mr. Stillman K. Dean, one of our well known and respected citizens, died very suddenly yesterday noon. He was employed in the sash and blind factory connected with Dole & Figg's mill and went to his work yesterday morning at the regular hour, apparently as well as usual. At about ten o'clock, however, he suddenly sank upon the floor, and came very near being injured by the machine, at which he was engaged at the time. His fellow workmen immediately hastened to his assistance, and after procuring a team he was removed to his residence on Larkin street. A physician was summoned who applied the proper restoratives, but without avail, for after remaining in an unconscious condition until twelve o'clock, Mr. Dean died. Apoplexy was the probable cause of his death. The deceased was about sixty years old and leaves a wife and four children. The funeral will occur Sunday afternoon at one o'clock from his late residence 18 Larkin street.

A LONG RIDE. The Belfast Journal says: On Thanksgiving afternoon there was drawn into this city a somewhat jaded horse attached to an emigrant wagon, in which were seated four persons—a middle aged man, a young man, two children, a boy four years old and a girl of two years. They were Mr. Vinal Richards and family, formerly of Northport, who had driven all the way from Mapleton, Aroostook county, fifty miles above Houlton. Mr. Richards left that place on Wednesday, Nov. 17th, and had thus been nine days on the road. The little children bore up bravely during the severe weather of last week, the little girl standing it better than the boy. The family called at a store in this city, to warm themselves before finishing their journey, which terminated at their old home in Northport. Two years ago Mr. Richards and family sought the Aroostook to better their fortunes. Last spring Mrs. Richards came to Northport, and failing ill was unable to return to her husband. And Mr. Richards cared for the family all summer.

FOR THE LADIES. Bodice bouquets are in vogue of sweet peas mixed with roses and mignonette, and, for dark dresses, holly, with its brilliant green leaves and bright red berries. The skirts of the short dresses are frequently made of velvet or plush, and others of shirred satin. The polonaises and basques worn with these are of a different color and material. This economical fashion is also exceedingly pretty and coquettish as well as convenient, as the same skirt may be adapted to several different polonaises or basques. Some of the new jerseys are admirably suited to these skirts, as they are made of much more expensive materials, such as different shades of wine color and rich copper bronze silk webbing. The "Claudia" is a name given to a high stylish bonnet for young faces. It is modeled somewhat like a Greek cap, with high shirred crown and a fall of rich lace over the hair, and strings to tie under the chin. A very pretty capote is made of pale blue plush, trimmed with cream-colored lace, and cream-white ostrich tips. Another style, very simple and becoming, resembles the hats worn by the French Cuirassiers, and is called the "Zelda." The Gypsy hat for girls is like a modified "poke" bonnet, and is flat down at the sides in the way the seaside hats were worn in the summer.

THE E. & N. A. RAILWAY.

A Proposed Night Train between this City and St. John.

If as a result of the recent conference of railroad officials in Portland, it is decided to run a night train between Bangor and St. John, the train with sleeping cars, would probably leave here about 7.10 P. M. and arrive in St. John about 7 A. M. On its return it would leave St. John at about 9.30 P. M. and arrive here at 7 A. M. In order to permit the train to arrive in Bangor as late as the hour mentioned above, it would be necessary for the Maine Central train to leave here at 7.15 or 7.20 A. M. Boston time, instead of seven o'clock as at present. To accomplish this the Maine Central folks would gather passengers from the local stations, between Bangor and Newport, on their early morning freight and transfer them at Newport to the express train, which would make no stops this side of that place. An opportunity will doubtless be given shippers of fresh fish to forward it from St. John on the night train, and in order that it shall reach Boston the next morning, the Maine Central folks would probably despatch their freight, now arriving at midnight, immediately after their day express. We also understand that Superintendent Tinker, of the Maine Central, will be in town to-day with a view to further discussing the question with our own and the St. John & Maine officials, when a final decision in regard to the whole matter will probably be reached.

POST BEALE, G. A. R.

Annual Election of Officers.

Last evening Post Beale, No. 12, G. A. R. held the first meeting for December, which is the regular time for the annual election of officers. Comrade A. B. Farnham, who has so ably and successfully performed the duties of Post Commander during the past year, and under whose administration the Post has prospered, was unanimously nominated, for re-election as Post Commander, but was permitted to decline solely on the ground that his business is such as to prevent him from devoting as much time to the work as he would like to do. The following comrades were then elected as the officers of the Post for the year 1881:

C. V. Crossman, P. C.
W. Z. Clayton, S. V. C.
S. H. Downs, J. V. C.
H. F. Hanson, Surgeon.
Edward B. Bates, Chaplain.
J. F. Maloney, Q. M.
G. M. Fletcher, Q. M.
G. A. Stetson, O. G.

The following named comrades were chosen as delegates and alternates to the annual encampment, to be held at Rockland in the latter part of January next:

DELEGATES.

W. Z. Clayton.	T. C. Tabor
E. Jordan.	H. E. Sellers.
A. B. Farnham.	J. F. Maloney.
C. E. Gatchell.	H. W. Cushman.
R. P. Peakes.

ALTERNATES.

William White.	G. A. Stetson.
G. M. Fletcher.	E. B. Bates.
H. B. Cushman.	J. C. Collins.
E. N. Egery.	L. D. Parker.
H. F. Hanson.

This being one delegate for each twenty-five comrades in good standing, according to last quarterly report of the Post, Sept. 30. The J. V. C., Chaplain, and Chief Mustering Officer of the Department being members of this Post, and the P. C. elect, by virture of their offices are also delegates.

The Adjutant is to be appointed by the Post Commander and the Sergeant-Major and Quartermaster's Sergeant upon recommendation by the Adjutant and Quartermaster respectively.

The Michigan Log Crop.

The season in Michigan appears to have been an unusually fine one for the great lumbering interests of that State. The Northwestern Lumberman says:

"We are not alone in our surprise at the outcome of the log crop of Michigan for the winter of 1879-80, which was legitimately supposed to have been much curtailed in consequence of the unfavorable character of the winter for logging purposes. A less favorable winter for getting in logs than was the last could scarcely have been imagined by the lumbermen who were engaged in the business. Logs cut as long ago as ten years have been received in quantities, while those cut six and eight years ago and with marks long since out of record have come equally free in quantity. The amount of rain which has fallen during the summer has kept the rivers of Michigan during nearly the entire season at a driving stage of water, and the opportunity has been improved to stack the shores of the rivers of the logs which year after year have accumulated.

"Letters pour in daily, sometimes by dozens, scores and hundreds, to Dr. David Kennedy of Rondout, N. Y., in grateful acknowledgement of the great benefits received from his "Favorite Remedy." These are all read with care and interest by him, as they frequently illustrate the power of the medicine in some new, and, perhaps, hitherto untested phase of operation. But it is when a sufferer comes miles to tell the story of his deliverance in person, to grasp the doctor by the hand and get him as a true and valued friend, that the interest in his case deepens and multiple. d&w2w

BEWARE OF ALCOHOLIC BITTERS.

Thousands have been ruined for life by drinking popular nostrums, the principal ingredient of which was alcohol. Such "bitters" are deceptive in their effects; they cause intoxication and temporary relief, while they foster the drunkard's appetite. Dr. Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" contains no alcohol. It does not heat and inflame the blood; it cools and purifies it. Better than this even, it has cured many a raving appetite or drunkard. It will do you good, not evil, all the days of your life. All druggists sell it. Dr. David Kennedy, Proprietor, Rondout, N. Y. &w2w n27

ONE EXPERIENCE FROM MANY.

I had been sick and miserable so long and had caused my husband so much trouble and expense, no one seemed to know what ailed me, that I was completely disheartened and discouraged. In this frame of mind I got a bottle of Hop Bitters and I used them nuntil one to my family. I soon began to improve and gained so fast that my husband and family thought it strange and unnatural but when I told them what had helped me, they said "Hurrah for Hop Bitters! long may they prosper, for they have made mother well and us happy."—The Mother.—Home Journal.

MAINE NEWS.

Loss by Fire at Biddeford About $60,000.

BIDDEFORD, Dec. 4. The loss of the Pepperell Company by fire last night was much heavier than at first estimated. Instead of 500 bales of cotton the building contained 1602 bales of which from 40 to 50 per cent. will be saved in a damaged condition. The cause is yet unknown, but the theory is advanced that some bales took fire on the cars, and was stored unobserved. The loss is now estimated at about $60,000.

Fire at West Gardiner.

GARDINER, Dec. 4. The barn and outbuildings of Justice Douglass, in West Gardiner, was to-day destroyed by fire, together with two cows, sheep, hens, hay and farming utensils. Loss $500; partially insured.

Steamer News.

PORTLAND, Dec. 4. The steamer Quebec of the Dominion Line, sailed for Glasgow this afternoon.

The venerable steamer Chesapeake arrived safely this afternoon from New York. She put in at Vineyard Haven and again at Cape Cod. She will sail for New York at midnight.

Ice on the Kennebec.

GARDINER, Dec. 4. Several ice companies have already began scraping ice, preparatory to harvesting when it becomes the proper thickness. The ice dealers are anxiously waiting, hoping for indications of an open winter, that will warrant the putting up of an amount of ice, equal to last season. If such indications are not forthcoming, only the regular dealers, having contracts for a series of years, will go forward with the business; other dealers who were in the field last season are preparing to invest their capital in less risky business. If, however, the weather the last of this month, indicates a lengthy period of mild weather may be expected during the first months of the new year, it is prophesied by prominent ice merchants, that a quarter more ice will be put up than last season, which on the Kennebec and adjacent ponds will amount to a million tons.

A Bold Thief.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 4. David Long, paymaster at Hubbard, Bodwell & Co.'s was passing along Pennsylvania avenue, at one o'clock to-day, with a package of money containing $1800 under his coat, when a young man, after tapping him on the shoulder to attract his attention, seized the package and sped away. Several persons participated in the pursuit, but were not successful in capturing the thief, who fired several shots at his pursurers.

Land League.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 5. At a meeting held this afternoon, for the purpose of forming a branch of the Land and Industrial League to co-operate with these of Ireland, Committees were appointed to prepare a plan and report at the next meeting. It is probable that a large organization will be formed in Philadelphia.

NEW YORK.

The Panama Canal.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4. The Panama canal subscription promises to be very large in Europe. Cable advices to-day report that that a premium of two hundred and fifty francs is bid for a full allotment, the impression on the other side being that the subscriptions are already coming in, and there is every indication that a large amount will be taken in the United States. It is calculated that of the amount to be expended in its construction at least $30,000,000 will be spent in this country, for machinery and food for the army of laborers to be maintained and for other purposes.

Money Matters.

About $6,000,000 of gold are expected at New York from Europe, during the coming week. The Boston banks and banks of Montreal are reported to have loaned $5,000,000 here the past few days. The United States Treasury has already $81,000,000 worth of silver of 1850, and it is authoritatively stated that two millions additional are on the way from the east and west for conversion into money.

New York Press Club.

Mr. John C. Hennessy, night city editor of the N. Y. Times, the newly elected President of the New York Press Club was installed into his office to-day. His constituant was M. H. C. Prince editor of a trade paper, and the election was rather an exciting one, but ended in a harmonious manner. Thurlow Weed withdrew his name as a candidate in favor of Mr. Hennessy. The club is in a flourishing condition and has elected Miss Barritt of the Sun librarian.

A Meeting of Socialists.

Over 3000 persons assembled in Germania Assembly Rooms this afternoon and gave a reception and welcome to twenty-four socialistic exiles from Germany, who recently arrived in the city. Fully one-fourth of those present were women and the entire assemblage were decorated with red silk ribbons, bows or rosettes. The hall was decorated with communne flags. Christian Callenbrag presided and in opening his speech vigorously attacked Bismarck and Hohenzollerns, and said that in spite of the one million bayonets in Germany the idea of freedom was gaining ground and could not be suppressed. We who are here fight with ballots, he said, turning to the party in whose honor the meeting was held, and I bid you welcome. Max Storler, a journalist, Carl Welker and Atto Reiner, an ex-deputy of Reichstage, in turn addressed the meeting in German.

Max Stoeler in the course of his speech said that ever since the attempt was made to take the life of the Emperor of Prussia, the Socialists in Germany had been constantly and cruelly persecuted, merely on suspicion of entertaining revolutionary sentiment. He claimed that the Socialists had nothing to do with the attempt to assassinate the Emperor. Socialistic literature has been suppressed and men whose sympathies are in this direction have been thrown out of work and enterprise.

Their correspondence was tampered with by the Government and public meetings prevented by the police. He ridiculed the German Parliament which was merely a representative in name which was controlled by Bismark and predicted that many secret socialistic organizations now existing would show their strength in the next Parliament. Otto Reinere speaking of the outrage against his brethren said that another one equally as great was Bismarck's movement against the Jews.

Attempted Murder.

Chief of Police Dwyer of Utica, arrested a man here to day, whose name he refused to make public, and took him to that city to-night on a charge of conspiracy. It was said that the prisoner had hired another man for $100 to kill a laborer in one of the Utica factories, and that the attempts at murder was made, but was unsuccessful. The would-be murderer made a confession, telling of the escape of the principal in the crime to New York.

A Fatal Fracas.

Patrick Foley, a laborer, was wounded and Michael Callahan was shot in the face this morning by Timothy Shea, janitor of a tenement house in Cherry street. Then said the wounded men were attempting to rob a drunken man when he ordered them off, when they stabbed him and he fired in self-defence.

American Counsel to Defend Parnell.

ROCHESTER, Dep. 4. At a meeting of the Monroe County Land Leagues to-day, they approved of sending an American counsel to defend Parnell and his associates, and resolved to pay their share of the expense.

A SERIOUS CONFLAGRATION.

The Kearsarge mills at Portsmouth, N. H., Destroyed by Fire.

LOSS ON THE MILL $500,000.

Three Hundred and Fifty Hands Thrown out of Employment.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Dec. 4. The destruction of the Kearsarge Mill with its appurtenances, this morning, is complete, ceasing one of the most serious fires that has occurred in this city for years, and proving a public calamity. The loss is not far from $500,000, besides throwing out of employment between 300 and 350 operatives, upon a majority of whom must fall much suffering this winter unless something is done for their relief.

The fire started in a room in the southeast corner of the fifth story about five minutes before six o'clock, under circumstances as stated in the previous despatch, spreading with such lightning rapidity that the occupants of the apartment barely escaped with their lives, as the flames rushed toward the staircase thereto, the operatives being obliged to leap over the fire in order to make their exit. Several were severely burned while endeavoring to escape. It is not known as yet that more than one person was burned to death but had the fire burst out twenty minutes later the destruction of life must have been great as the mill would have been in full operation, the operatives being obliged to be in and earlier on Saturday morning in order to clean up the machinery. The loss on the building and general contents is mostly covered by insurance, placed with Boston agencies.

The machinery was driven by one high-pressure steam engine of 200 horse power and one low-pressure engine of 300 horse power, the general appurtenances of the building being of the best. The mill manufactured cotton goods, and was doing an excellent business. The following were the officers: President, James L. Little; Treasurer W. M. H. Thompson; Agent, Robert E. Adams; Clerk, Samuel W. Hoyt; Directors, James L. Little, Josiah G. Abbott, James H. Blake, John Storrow, Alexander S. Wheeler.

By hard work on the part of the local and navy yard departments, the destruction of the Freewill Baptist Chapel was prevented although the building was considerably damaged, more by water than by fire; insurance thereon $2000. The close proximity of the jail to the mill at one time threatened the burning of that building, whereupon Sheriff Kent had the prisoners, 110 in number—prepared ready for speedy transfer to the police headquarters, but the prompt assistance saved the structure. Sparks from the mill set fire to several buildings in various parts of the city, causing much alarm. Scores of houses a long distance from the main fire had men at work on the roofs, putting out the burning cinders, which the wind had carried a great distance. All danger of a general conflagration was allayed before eight o'clock. The fire has attracted a large number of people from the surrounding towns.

WASHINGTON.

Railroad Auditor's Report.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. Railroad Auditor French says that the Union Pacific, Central Pacific, Southern Pacific, Atlantic & Pacific & Northern Pacific R. R. Companies and lines connecting therewith, aggregate over 6000 miles. On all these properties says Auditor French extensions and improvements have been the order of the day.

For the calendar year 1879, as compared with 1878, the gross earnings of nearly all the railroads in the United States show an increase of $40,000,000 or about 8 per cent. The net earnings show an increase of $32,500,000, or more than 17 per cent., and an increased mileage of about 6 per cent., or nearly 48,000 miles. This increased business of 1879 occurred nearly altogether on the railroads of the Middle, Western and Southwestern States, those in the Pacific, New England and Southern States not having materially improved. A comparative statement of the business of certain numerous railroads in eastern Missouri and other railroads, wholly or partially west of of Mississippi, aggregating some twelve thousand miles each, furnishes the following information: That while the ratio of operating expenses to the earnings on those western roads is, say 52 per cent., or on the eastern roads 63 per cent., the eastern roads have done three times the work at nearly double the cost; that both these eastern and western roads have reduced their rate per ton per mile 14 per cent. and passenger rates about 7 per cent. on an average; that the average have both of freight and passengers on the western nearly doubled that on the eastern roads, and that the average rate per ton per mile on the eastern roads is down to a very low price, or less than nine tenths per cent. and the rate on passengers per mile to 2¼ per cent.

A statement is given showing in detail the receipts and expenditures of the Northern Pacific. Pettill, and that she has left the city for parts unknown. Mr. Harwood is still here and suspicions of the fraud are stronger than ever. Harwood's attorneys state, however, that if a settlement can be arrived at, the sum paid to Mrs. Harwood will be returned and she will accept her pro rata of the whole amount. Lock in Hollowell, Nov. 15. A GOOD SUGGESTION. An exchange says: Let any one who has the care of a horse these cold, frosty mornings, deliberately grasp in his hand a piece of iron; indeed, let him touch it to the tip end of his tongue, and then let him thrust the bit into the mouth of his horse if he has the heart to do it. The horse is an animal of nervous organization. His mouth is formed of delicate glands and tissues. The temperature of the blood is the same as in human beings, and, as in man, the mouth is the warmest part of the body. Imagine, we repeat, the irritation that would be caused the human, and consider that, if not in the same degree, still the suffering of the poor animal was very great. And it is not a momentary pain. Food is eaten with difficulty, and the irritation, repeated day after day, causes loss of appetite and loss of strength. Many a horse has become worthless from no other cause than this.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE MR. WEED. The remains of the late Wyatt Weed were taken to Veazie, Saturday, enclosed in a handsome casket covered with black broadcloth and ornamented with massive handles and a silver plate engraved with his name, date of death and age, sixty-eight years. The funeral occurred yesterday afternoon, under the auspices of Oriental Lodge, No. 60, I. O. of O. F. Some eighty Odd Fellows left this city a few minutes past two o'clock in a special train, C. E. Lovell acting as Marshal with S. A. Hayworth, and S. C. Davis as aides. A large number of Sir Knights, of St. John's Commandery, also went up on the train, Mr. Weed having been an active member of that body, and a member of Rising Virtue Lodge. The remains of the deceased brother were escorted from the house to the church, which failed to accommodate the very large attendance. The service at the house and church were conducted by Rev. Mr. Rich; at the grave the services were very brief owing to the severe snow storm which prevailed at the time. Many of the Masons present marched in the solemn procession.

FOR THE LADIES. The furore for plush seems to be on he increase. Plush suits and cloaks, hats, muffs, bonnets, coachmen's capes, breakfast caps and cuffs are all made of this popular material, and it is not only that it is employed in forming articles of dress, but book-bindings, sofa cushings, reticules, box covers, table covers, table-spreads, boudoir curtains and mats are made of it. In short wherever the fabrics can be utilized it is brought into requisition. The manufacturers of this material must be reaping a golden harvest, and as no overdone fancy has a very long tenure, no doubt they will continue to make their hay while the fickle sun of fashion continues to shine upon them. Fashionable people have usually a tendency to divide favors with respect to contending styles and materials. Now, however, plush and plush only is "de idee fixe" of everybody, including milliners, dress and cloakmakers, upholsterers and manufacturers of fancy articles generally. The very vehemence of this rage for plush must soon vulgarize it. It is, however, an expensive material, and one not easily copied in cheaper substances. In most fabrics cheap imitations are quickly brought out, and as a consequence, among our elegantes, the tide of favor ebbs as fast as it flows. There is no doubt that plush is very ill calculated to stand any stress of weather, yet it appears in all articles of dress intended for out-door wear.

FARM WORK AT THE INSANE HOSPITAL. The Kennebec Journal says: Although the fields are already covered with their winter mantle and but little out-door farm work can be done, yet Captain Larkin and his corps of assistants still keep busy. During the past summer a green house has been erected south of the other conservatory, which is to be used principally for rose culture. In the centre there is a large bed, 30x8 feet, which is full of rose bushes of different varieties. During the cold months boxes of flowering and foliaceous plants will be placed on the window shelves in the halls where the patients are confined. The enjoyment which the unfortunate ones who are deprived of reason derive from this arrangement, is an ample compensation for the labor and expense attendant upon flower raising. It is a spray of brightness in their sombre lives. The wind-mill works to a charm. The sewerage, waste water from the laundry, etc. finds its way through conduits to a hugh vat beneath the frame. As the ponderous wheel revolves, this liquid mass, rich in fertilizing materials, is pumped to different parts of the farm and allowed to course over the grass. The roots absorb the generous food. It is believed that this arrangement will effect an annual saving in the purchase of fetilizers to the extent of several hundred dollars. In addition to the pecuniary benefits it will be a valuable object lesson to other farmers in the vicinity. This liquid manure, which is now almost wholly wasted, is impregnated with gases and fluids especially adapted to the nourishment of plants. If it can be saved and applied to the regeneration of worn-out grass lands, it will do much for the material prosperity of the State. Next summer we expect to see a mammouth hay crop harvested on the irrigated lands.

Decision in Law.

The following decision has been received by Ruel Smith, Esq., Clerk of the Eastern Law District:

PENOBSCOT COUNTY, CASE.

Charles H. Smith, in equity, vs. John M. Sullivan and, als. "Bill dismissed with costs."

RESCRIPT.

The assignment law R. S. ch. 70, so far as it applies to insolvent persons is repealed by the insolvent law of 1878.

The defendants, Coombs and Parker, therefore take no title to the property in question by virtue of their assignment by Jones as against his creditors.

In a case like this against persons not parties as assignees, debtors or creditors, the jurisdiction of this Court as both a law and equity rests upon the general principles applicable, and not upon s. 11 ch. 74 act of 1878.

In this case the claim is substantially for an unauthorized intermeddling with property and the remedy is at law, and not in equity.

An Old Veteran.

The oldest inhabitant of the town of Penobscot is Ebenezer Hutchins, who is ninety-three years of age. He has a keen recollection of some war incidents which happened in his history. When the British made their famous attack upon Castine he was one of that band of "minute men" who stood ready to defend their country against the invaders. After the blood era war which ended in the capture of Castine by the British, Mr. Hutchins was captured by British officers while attending to his private business, because he was too stubborn to recognize British authority. He was carried to Canada and kept six months in a filthy and crowded prison. He describes the fare as poor and scanty, the discipline rigid, and the filthiness of the prison beyond description, and a disgrace to savage nations.

His brother, Wm. Hutchins, who lived to the great age of 101 years, was the last surviving soldier of the Revolution in New Eng and. He lived to see two generations of his descendants, represented in the two great wars of our history succeeding the Revolution, so that we might say that he was virtually represented in the three great wars of our national history—the Revolutionary war, the war of 1812, and the war of 1861.

A fitting close to his long and patriotic life was the Grand Fourth of July Celebration at Bangor during the war period of 1861, in which he figured as the principal object of interest, curiosity, and honor. He always manifested the keenest interest in State and National elections, and esteemed the right of suffrage as the highest privilege of the American citizen, and never failed to deposit his ballot so long as he had strength enough to get to the polls. He is remembered as a strong anti-slavery man, and a thorough-going Republican, and took an absorbing interest in the discussion of national questions. Long may his example be kept fresh in the memory of succeeding generations, and stimulate in them a spirit of true patriotism, and a devotion to the highest interest of this country.—Ellsworth American.

The Express Business.

Mr Editor: In your issue of the second inst., is a local item concerning the express business which is apt to mislead our patrons, and the public generally, as well as to injure our business. It says: "The Penobscot River Express Company have made arrangements to transport their freight by rail, whenever the weather is such that the boat does not leave Boston." The impression would be that they had obtained facilities by express (passenger) trains, which cannot be as the American Express Co., has the exclusive contract with the railroad company for that service.

The item referred to should have stated that the Penobscot River Company will forward their goods by the regular freight train, whenever the boat is detained at Boston on account of bad weather.

"Letters pour in daily, sometimes by dozens, scores and hundreds, to Dr. David Kennedy of Rondout, N. Y., in grateful acknowledgement of the great benefits received from his "Favorite Remedy." BEWARE OF ALCOHOLIC BITTERS.

Thousands have been ruined for life by drinking popular nostrums, the principal ingredient of which was alcohol. Such "bitters" are deceptive in their effects; they cause intoxication and temporary relief, while they foster the drunkard's appetite. Dr. Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" contains no alcohol. It does not heat and inflame the blood; it cools and purifies it. Better than this even, it has cured many a raving appetite for drink. It will do you good, not evil, all the days of your life. BITTERS

There's no civilized nation in the Western Hemisphere in which the utility of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a tonic, corrective, and antidote to Dyspepsia, is not known and appreciated. While it is a medicine for all seasons and all climates, it is especially suited to the complaints generated by the weather, being the purest and best vegetable stimulant in the world.

To the Honorable Judge of Probate for the County of Penobscot:

The undersigned, Administratrix of the estate of William Higgins, late of Kenduskeag, in said County, deceased, respectfully represents that the goods and chattels, rights and credits of said deceased are not sufficient to pay the debts and charges of administration by about five thousand dollars.

Wherefore your petitioner prays your Honor to grant her power to sell by private sale, and convey the whole of the following described real estate of the deceased, including the reversion of the widow's dower therein, as the residue would be greatly depreciated by a sale of any part thereof, viz: The real estate appraised in the inventory of deceased's estate as house and lot recently occupied by Henry Smith, one-still, shingle-mill and privilege; also the very best house lot and machine-shop, undivided half of Kenduskeag Hotel and lot; store and lot occupied by W. J. Snowman and others; Kenduskeag Village Hotel; Heath's hotel, stable and lot, with Depot place; individual little park in Kenduskeag Village of 1 60 acres of and in Hampden; one-half share in Hampden mill property; all the real estate of which the deceased died seized, to satisfy said debts, expenses of sale, and charges of administration.

THREE WORDS OF STRENGTH.

There are three lessons I would write—
Three words as with a burning pen,
In traciness of eternal light,
Upon the hearts of men.

Have Hope. Though clouds environ now,
And gloominess hides her face in scorn,
Put thou the shadow from thy brow:
No night but hath its morn.

Have FAITH. Where'er thy bark is driven—
The calm's disport, the tempest's mutter—
Know this: God rules the host of heaven,
The inhabitants of earth.

Have LOVE; and not alone for one,
But man, as man, thy brother call;
And scatter like the circling sun,
Thy charities on all.

Thus grave these lessons on thy soul—
Hope, Faith and Love—and thou shalt find
Strength where life's surges rudest roll,
Light where thor'ghe were blind.

S. H. BLAKE.

THE OLD-FASHIONED THANKSGIVING.

The night before Thanksgiving was perhaps the best of the whole, the anticipation and excitement almost reached their climax; it was the nocte triste of the hens—the hen-roost was invaded, and the boy could indulge his natural propensity for slaughter with a feeling that it was sanctioned by the Christian religion. The squawking was music in his ears, the cutting off of heads a bloody joy, the ludicrous attempts of the hens to go about without any heads a source of inexhaustible merriment. Neither age nor sex was spared; youth did not excuse the rooster from quitting his perch at the sudden summons in the dark, nor old age and munificence in eggs the venerable hen.

Whatever the breakfast was, and it was abundant, it always had one dish—chicken shortcake. I still believe that nothing else ever made is so good as chicken shortcake. What a lot of "dough" it had and how it simulated with its brown-speckled, crystal-naked baked potatoes. If The Times were a cook-book, I would give the recipe for it. But its moral quality I would not convey to any back born New Englander of the old days.

Everybody went to meeting, everybody young and old, except the mother of the trusted oldest daughter, who stayed at home to forward dinner. The meeting house was full—fuller than on Sunday. The sermon was a sober politics "trouser." Was it Parson Hallock, or Parson Grout, or Parson Field—preached it? It didn't spare the Ammonites, nor the Hittites, nor the other "ites," who had strayed away from the good old Federal principles. It set National affairs on the right track and everybody felt better for it. There was no talk about preaching politics then. The town election was held in the meeting house, whence the voting was as orderly and as solemnly conducted as any of the Sundays; it was not improper there to treat of the duties of "citizens" in a Federal way.

It was all much like Sunday, and yet a cheerful Sunday—bright faces, greetings and eager inquiries about "who hasn't come." After the service and the long, long sermon was ended, we did not go home to dinner during the "intermission," to eat four doughnuts and apples in the church, and nobody warmed a piece of frost-frozen mince pie on the stove; we went home, and went in perceptibly gayer spirits than when we came. Dinner was late, as late almost as three o'clock. Everybody was as hungry as if he had fasted for a year. There is no modern appetizer like an old-fashioned sermon about the Hittites. What a dinner it was, the blossom of all the year! What could the boy do with a chicken pot roast turkey and roast chicken, and roast black, with a chicken pie to come? A dinner is nothing but a dinner, anyway, and no person at a given time can possibly eat as much as he expects to eat when his imagination has been active on the subject for some time. And then the dessert. I remember a dinner at which an attempt was made to serve twenty-three distinct kinds of pie. Will any body not born in New England believe there are so many kinds of pie?

It was not certainly till after dinner (yes, there was a little cider, but it had not done much work yet) that the solemnity of the day could be fairly said to have broken away, and the friskiness of the youngsters began to have play. But by evening a real festive air prevailed, and even drew the old folks into it. Apples, cider, nuts, toasted cheese, roaring wood fires, puss-in-the-corner, games round the great tall clock in the corner struck the awful hour for ten!—Charles Dudley Warner in The Sunday School Times.

"My case is just here," said a citizen to a lawyer the other day; "the plaintiff did swear that I hit him. The witnesses that I did not. Now, what can you lawyers make out of that if we go to trial?" "Five dollars apiece," was the prompt reply.

FELLOWS' SYRUP

Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma.

WERE FELLOWS' COMPOUND SYRUP useless in all other diseases, the benefit which it undoubtedly yields in Consumption and other diseases of the Throat and Lungs, would fully justify the claim to the attention of every medical practitioner. From the statistics of England and America it is fair inference that one-fifth of the entire deaths is caused by Consumption alone. If the Syrup is used perseveringly it absolves the tendency to Consumption and in many of the cases, as in that of the inventor, it has effected a cure.

Indigestion and habitual Costiveness almost always arise from weakness of the nerves and muscles of the stomach and bowels. It such cases Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites has proved itself of the greatest service. The evacuations soon become copious and healthy.

This Syrup will cure HUMOROUS CONSTRICTION in the first stage, and will give great relief and prolong life in the second and third stage. CURE ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, LARYNGITIS, and COUGHS. It will cure all diseases originating from want of Muscular Action and Nervous Force.

Public Speakers and Singers.

Will find this Syrup of inestimable value. A dose should be taken before speaking or singing.

Aphonia, or the loss of voice, is usually cured by a few doses. We have known cases where a single dose has been effectual.

S. JACOB, M. D., 56 J ffn St., writes:

"I had occasion to use your Syrup in a case of Aphonia which would not yield to regular treatment. It proved to be just what you claim for it, having acted with expedition and entire satisfaction."

☞ Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this, under any circumstances.
